HIRAM JOHNSON'S statement has the old-fashioned Johnson ring, that some of his friends have missed since the Harding election. "The Republican party is dominated by the unholy alliance between crooked big business and crooked politics," says Johnson.

That's true, and you can't "smash" that by any GENTLE campaigning.

IT IS DOUBTFUL whether it can be smashed at all just now. While the Republican party is dominated by crooked big business, the people also know that the Democratic party is the "spare tire" of crooked big business. That Democratic "spare tire" is carried on the back of the big business band wagon to be used in case a Republican tire should accidentally blow out.

SOME VOTERS conclude that they would rather have Republican crookedness with some efficiency than Democratic crookedness without any efficiency. Not much of a choice, and it will take a very big man or a big event to break the "big business" combination.

CHICAGO learns with unjustified scorn that Joseph Leiter, of the well-known Chicago family, is being sued for $1,302, the price of 111 pairs of socks. Twelve dollars a pair for socks shocks Chicago. Chicago learns with added horror that Mr. Leiter changes his silk socks twice a day.

WHAT OF IT? The great Buffon never sat down to his magnificent scientific work without beautiful lace ruffles around his wrists. And Tycho Brahe, prince of astronomical observers, always put on clothing, "his very best, before entering his observatory, saying: "I am here in the presence of my Maker."

Mr. Leiter may have just as good a reason for two pairs of silk socks a day, at $12 a pair.

MR. LEBOUTILLIER is vice-president of the Long Island Railroad, and nevertheless, a rude government seized his private car, stocked with choice liquids, and threatens to seize and sell the car.

That is pushing prohibition beyond the joke stage. Keeping beer from working men is all right. Keeping champagne from the vice-president of a great railroad is quite another matter.

THE JAPANESE Ambassador informs Secretary of State Hughes that "grave consequences" may follow passage of the bill for excluding the Japanese effectively—which has not been done under the "gentlemen's agreement."

Observe Japan's attitude toward the United States and Australia. There are one hundred and ten million Americans holding six million Australians. We welcome Japanese students and travelers. Australia strictly excludes Japanese and all other Asiatics. But Japan doesn't threaten any "grave consequences" for Australia.

THE JAPANESE know that Australia means ... They are rather doubtful about the United States, being well aware that some of our largest "interests" and pocketbooks would be glad to get cheap Asiatic labor. But that labor isn't coming in, and it is betraying no confidence to tell Japan that the people of the United States are quite ready to accept the "grave consequences."

45 MILLION LEFT BY SEARLES

Greek Boy Figures in Secrets of Hermit Bared by Suit Against Nephew

Edward F. Searles' alleged friendship with Angelo Milton Ellison, a handsome Greek boy, will be among the hidden chapters in the life of the late millionaire recluse of Methuen, to be revealed at the trial of a suit for $325,000 brought against Victor Albert Searles, nephew of the dead eccentric, by Judge Harry C. Curtis of Providence.

The trial will start in New York on Monday. It promises many revelations of interest to Boston and New England, where the fight for the $45,000,000 Searles estate attracted widespread interest.

Judge Curtis, who was associated with Sherman L. Whipple as counsel for Victor Searles, alleges he is entitled to $325,000 for the part he played in securing $4,500,000 for the nephew.

He also says he was instrumental in locating the young Greek Apollo, a former bell boy, who played a mysterious role in the closing year or two of the life of the multi-millionaire recluse.

The hunt for the Greek boy is said to have marked the turning point in the will contest. Efforts into the life of the senior Searles of the young Greek bell-hop was resented by Arthur T. Walker, manager of Searles' estate in Methuen, who had succeeded millions under the Searles.

Counsel filed that many secrets in the strange career of the Methuen recluse will be laid bare for the first time, but the old man's interest in Angelo Ellison promises to be a major revelation.

Edward F. Searles, who died in Methuen in August, 1920, was eighty years of age. He divided his time between his vast estate in Methuen and the Murray Hill Hotel in New York, where he maintained a lavish suite. It was there that he first met young Ellison. Ellison brought ice water and did errands for the aged millionaire, who took a fancy to him at once.

The senior Searles lavished money and presents on the youth, and ordered his clothes of the smartest Fifth avenue tailors and haberdasheries and engaged private tutors for him. The boy soon became the old man's chief companion and seemed to have more influence over him than anyone else.

When Angelo was absent Mr. Searles fretted and kept calling for

BROKERS AND FIRMS INDICTED

Several brokerage firms and individual brokers are included in seventy secret indictments charging bucketing, which were returned today by the Suffolk Grand Jury.

Ten of the indictments charge perjury in the giving of bail bonds, obtaining of marriage licenses, testimony in divorce suits and in civil suits and probate matters.

The jury, which made a partial report Thursday, also returned fifty-seven other indictments before Judge Fiyan of the Superior Court.

Among those was one charging Evan S. Cameron, an ex-Princeton football player, with operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor.

Cameron's car was alleged to have struck and caused the death of a woman on Commonwealth avenue. Evidence failed to show Cameron was responsible for the woman's death, with the result that a no-bill was returned in manslaughter proceedings.

Edward J. Doherty was indicted for manslaughter. While under the influence of liquor, it is alleged, he operated a truck which ran into a fence, throwing him out and fatally injuring a man who was riding with him.

Indictments charging unlawful use of an automobile also were returned against Thomas J. McDonough.

SOAP KING QUIT WIFE FOR CULT

Millionaire Accused of Deserting Mate to Become Member of Mystic Order

"In order to find this cosmic ego or universal Self, he first removes all limited egoism, differentiating himself from the body, mind, senses and all the gross objects of this perishable world."

—Vedanta Philosophy.

Before the altar of the little Vedanta Centre chapel at No. 1 Queensbury street in the Back Bay, Charles H. Larkin, millionaire soap magnate of Buffalo and Los Angeles, heard Swami Paramananda, local priest of the Brahmins, expound this mystic Oriental philosophy.

And now, according to reports from California, Mrs. Larkin, who was formerly the beautiful and talented Alice Whitin of the wealthy Worcester County family of that name, has petitioned for a divorce alleging desertion.

Dispatches today from Los Angeles declare the soap king has become so imbued with the mysticism of Swami Paramananda's teachings that he deserted his business interests also to become an active disciple of Vedanta. "Differentiating himself from the gross objects of the world."

At the Vedanta Community Centre today a white-robed "sister" of the cult admitted that Millionaire Larkin was a member and active worker of the cult.

Swami Paramananda, founder of the Back Bay Brahmin community house, was said to be out of town.

Since his introduction to the teachings of Vedanta, Mr. Larkin has been a frequent visitor to the Back Bay headquarters of the cult.

"He is but one only of a great number of persons of wealth and culture who have become supporters of the Brahmin cult after listening to the wonderful teachings of our founder," said one of the Vedanta sisters today.

Mr. Larkin was a devoted friend

Worcester, April 12.—Twelve patients, three of them babies, two weeks old, were rescued from flames today during a fire that destroyed the Harvard Hospital, a private institution at No. 81 Chatham street.

Nurses, firemen and nearby residents assisted in carrying the patients from the three-and-one-half-story wooden structure.

The fire started when painters, burning off an old coat of paint, tipped over a torch. The building is a total loss.

BIG CUT IN QUOTA OF ALIENS

Representatives Decide on 2 Per Cent. on 1890 Census as Immigration Basis

Washington, April 12 (I.N.S.).—Without a record vote but with no one dissenting, the House of Representatives today wrote into the new immigration restriction bill a provision barring Japanese and abrogating the "gentlemen's agreement" with Japan.

Japanese exclusion was approved by the House in the face of a vigorous protest from the Japanese government, accompanied by threats of "dire consequences."

Washington, April 12.—The House today approved provisions of the Johnson immigration bill, which would fix quotas at 2 per cent. based on the 1890 census.

Under the existing law which expires June 30, next, quotas are 3 per cent., based on the census of 1910. Amendments to change the quotas will be taken up tomorrow.

The action will reduce the quotas of immigrants entering the United States annually from 349,000 to 164,000.

With the quotas based on the census of 1890, the number of immigrants would be reduced still more drastically. Immigration from countries in Europe, Asia and Africa would be cut from 349,000 to 154,000.

LARKIN ACCUSED OF DESERTING HIS WIFE TO JOIN BRAHMINS

To revert to the unutterable ...bliss of Mr. Larkin's life:

Mr. and Mrs. Larkin separated ...in Los Angeles about a year ago.

Reports of discord resulting from ...the continued devotion of the rub...Senator to Brahminism, coupled ...with the constant visits of Indian ...Swamis to his Buffalo home and to ...his great Californian show place led ...to his alleged desertion of his wife, ...friends declare.

At that time, according to the ...complaint filed with the divorce suit, ...Larkin left his wife and came to ...Boston with intent to desert and ...abandon her."

It was soon after this alleged desertion of his talented wife that Larkin made his appearance at the Sunday meetings of the Vedanta cult at the Queensbury street chapel of Swami Paramananda.

Mrs. Larkin values the couple's community property at $1,350,000, which she says consists of $1,000,000 in shares of the Larkin Soap Company and other personal and realty property.

She asks reasonable alimony, counsel fees and a decree of the community property.

Society Leaders Are Brahmin Devotees

Charles H. Larkin, millionaire soap king, is not the only person of wealth who has been won over to the Oriental mysticism of Brahmanism as taught by Swami Paramananda, priest of the Vedanta Community Chapel in the Back Bay.

Greater Boston men and women of wealth and social prominence are active followers and patrons of the suave and eloquent young East Indian, whose teachings of the philosophies of Vedanta have met with success in Boston and in Los Angeles, Cal.

Miss Catherine Sherwood, acting priest of the Vedantists, today declared that some of the blood of Boston's blue bloods and the wealthiest and most cultured of her people are supporters of the young Brahmin priest.

"So well known are these people that it would be most disrespectful of us to make their identities known," said Lay Sister Sherwood today.

LARKIN A DEVOTEE

Concerning Soap King Larkin and his connection with the Swami Paramananda cult, Sister Sherwood said:

"It is true that Mr. Larkin is deeply interested in Vedanta and in the teachings of our beloved Swami Paramananda. He visited us here at the community centre more than a year ago. That was before he and Mrs. Larkin became estranged. Mrs. Larkin is not a member of our cult.

"Mr. Larkin's stay here at the community was most pleasant for all of us.

"Mr. Larkin had never seen our beautiful chapel and community house here. He remained for several days. During his stay here he passed much time in the company of Swami Paramananda.

"The report from Los Angeles to the effect that Mr. Larkin's generosity made it possible for the Swami to establish another Vedanta community near the Larkin home in Los Angeles, is something upon which I can make no comment."

Asked if it was true that Mr. Horace Larkin had "vacated the premises of the world," even to the extent of abandoning all interest in the Buffalo soap and perfumes founded by his father, Sister Sherwood said:

"I don't believe that is true. I wish it was a fact. It would do Mr. Larkin a deal of good."

FLOURISHES IN HUB

Sister Sherwood had a word to say with reference to the growth of Vedantaism since Swami Paramananda brought the new idea to Boston in 1912 or 1913.

The Swami have enjoyed wonderful success here. They have a beautiful building which houses all the activities of the organization, including the chapel, home of the Swami and "white sisters" and the distributing office for Swami Paramananda's many publications.

"Our centres here are beautiful souls who have ...ranscended to a large degree the material things of this world. They live in semi-seclusion.

"But their lives differ from those of the lives of the 'sisters' of other religious denominations. They are permitted to enjoy certain freedom unknown to the good women of the cloth in other sects. They take care of the household here and assist in the work of the Swami.

"The Swami makes his home here, of course, when he is in Boston.

"Ours is not a secret cult. We have open public services of organ music, prayer and an address. We burn little incense at each service in the chapel."

FLOCK IS WEALTHY

Miss Sherwood announced that she will preach tomorrow in the Vedanta chapel on the subject: "Knowledge and Wisdom."

The sister continued, speaking of Swami Paramananda's teachings:

"The practical part of the teaching of Vedanta is called Yoga, which literally means 'joining' or union of the lower self and the higher self.

"'Karma Yoga' is the path of work and teaches us how to perform all our duties without creating bondage.

"'Raja Yoga' teaches us how to control both our external and our internal nature.

"'Bhakti Yoga' is the path of love and devotion. It is the most natural path to follow, because we all have love in our hearts.

"'Jnana Yoga' is the path of philosophic discrimination and is socially suited to those of intellectual tendency."

Swami Paramananda taught also that when the "Vedantist finds his true Self he is able to declare with conviction: "I am He; I am the Truth; "I am the Absolute Brahmin," "I and my Father are one."

These and other striking passages from the writings of Swami Paramananda—the ...ollowed Soap King's counsellor and friend—have had a large influence in the adoption of Brahmanism by hundreds of wealthy Bostonians.

LUXURIOUS PLACE

The Vedanta Community Centre is an imposing four-story brick structure at the corner of Queensbury street and Audubon road.

The interior of the building is luxuriously furnished. Paintings and works of art adorn the walls of the reception rooms. The chapel, where the meetings are conducted, is a roomy auditorium on the first floor.

Folding doors give access to the reception room. These are flung open frequently to permit participation of large congregations in the meetings.

Swami Paramananda, barged in the silken robes of his native India, presides at the small altar at one end of the room. His head is crowned in bright-hued cloth the Swami discourses each Sunday to his audiences.

Outside the building on these days a long line of costly motor cars is parked, attesting to the financial standing of those who have been attracted by his teachings.

FRANK A NICHOLS BURIED AT CONCORD

High State officials and members of the Legislature were among the mourners at the funeral of Frank A. Nichols, Boston newspaperman, held in the First Parish Unitarian Church at Concord, today.

A committee from the Legislature attended the funeral as well as the full membership of the State House Press Association. Interment was made in Sleepy Hollow Cemetery, Concord.

'CLEANUP' WILL CONTINUE, SAYS WHEELER

Declares Department of Justice Is the Collection Agency of Campaign Contributions

Chicago, April 12.—Clean-up of the vicious system which is springing up in Washington of using the Department of Justice as "a collection agency of campaign contributions," was promised here today by Senator Burton K. Wheeler, "prosecutor" of the Senate Daugherty Committee.

"I should feel my efforts vain if they resulted only in the ousting of an unfaithful servant," he said, referring to Daugherty.

"I think the country demands it and our committee is going on and show up the vicious system that is springing up in Washington and using the Department of Justice as a collection agency for campaign contributions—yes, collecting campaign funds from rich offenders of the law.

"We shall show that these contributors either are under indictment or have civil suits instituted by the government pending against them. We shall prove that many of those who haven't been prosecuted for fraud are willing to forget the war have contributed large sums of money to the Republican National Committee.

RAPS COOLIDGE

He laid his recent indictment in Montana to the "machinations of the Republican National Committee and the party of the Republican National Committee and friends of former Attorney-General Daugherty and it will not stand the light.

"We have shown conclusively that Mr. Daugherty was absolutely unfit for the high office of attorney general and that before he was replaced in that office he was a poor risk with more liabilities than assets.

"We find him in three years time a wealthy man dealing in Sinclair oil stocks, steel stocks and owning stock in a corporation which the records show defrauded the government of millions during the war.

$200,000 CONTRIBUTOR

"No prosecution has ever been made of that company or civil suit begun to recover the money.

"The next man we shall investigate is a millionaire who contributed $200,000 to the Republican campaign fund."

Wheeler also declared today that Mal S. Daugherty, brother of the former attorney general, would be cited for contempt before the inquiry.

"There are still many leads to be developed in the Daugherty inquiry," he said, and the investigation will continue for at least six weeks "despite the opposition confronting the committee."

by General Dawes of the U. S. A. and will be glad to accept the German billions as outlined.

No such gladness and cheerfulness are observed in Germany, however.

REPUBLICAN leaders in Chicago suggest that General Dawes, of "Hell and Maria" and reparations fame, may accept the Republican nomination, if anything should happen to President Coolidge.

At present, however, Coolidge isn't planning to let anything happen to him.

DR. THOMAS, president of Pennsylvania State College, says the buck-saw drives boys from the farm. You know the buck-saw, of course. You put a log of wood on the saw buck, put one foot on the log, then you saw back and forth, occasionally greasing the saw, until that chore is done.

The work is good for you, taking far off the front and strengthening muscles of the back. But it is work no longer necessary. You can attach a saw to an automobile wheel, jack up the rear axle and saw, in one morning, enough wood to last all Winter.

controversy between Senator Couzens, Republican, Michigan, prosecutor for the committee, and Secretary Mellon.

"And I knew what that meant," Senator Watson said in referring to Governor Pinchot.

Senator Watson said he had informed Secretary Mellon that Governor Pinchot had suggested "Heney's employment" and that it was this information which prompted Mellon's letter to President Coolidge, transmitted yesterday to the Senate.

"He knew and I knew," Senator Watson said, "that from that moment the purposes of the inquiry became destructive and not constructive."

ATTACK ON COOLIDGE.

Senator Watson declared the attack upon Secretary Mellon was designed as "a careful attempt to reach Coolidge."

"Mellon is not being attacked for Mellon's sake," Senator Watson said, "but in the effort to get the President. The whole thing in my opinion is this: If they can weaken the secretary in any way, they work on the tax bill he proposed and which the President had seen fit to endorse.

"Mr. Mellon is the main support of Mr. Coolidge and Mr. Coolidge undoubtedly will be the leader of this side in the coming campaign. These arrows have all been aimed at his breast and today they lie broken at his feet.

"No investigation, however troublesome, will disturb the estimate in which he is held by the people."

MAY PRODUCE EVIL.

Senator Watson said: "The investigation of the Internal Revenue Bureau should not go on.

"No good purpose can be conserved by that investigation," he said, "and it may produce much evil."

He served notice he would call up at an early date his resolution moving the discharge of the Revenue Bureau investigating committee.

Senator Watson said he was opposed to an investigation of the prohibition unit, "because no one has enforced prohibition to be rigidly enforced up to the present hour."

REED REPLIES.

Senator Reed of Missouri, replying to Senator Watson, said the President's message of yesterday should be examined from the record of the Senate, as unworthy of receiving the notice of the body.

"It is, to use plain language, an insult to the Senate itself," Senator Reed declared.

"It must be that something is about to be found," he said, "that we have this protest. It seems to me the fear is that another Cabinet officer will have to go."

Watson said he had signed subpoenas in blank at Senator Couzens' request and that the latter had sent him last Tuesday a letter addressed to Secretary Mellon asking for a complete list of all corporations in which the Secretary held stock and the amount of stock he held in each."

REFUSED TO SIGN.

"I refused to sign that letter," Senator Watson said, adding he informed Senator Couzens he regarded this as none of the committee's business.

Later, Senator Watson said, he discussed with Senator Couzens and Professor Thomas Adams, committee adviser. The future course of the committee and told them "the inquisitorial hat has gone far enough to show there is nothing in it."

The latest turn taken by the investigation, Mr. Watson declared, would "change the scentry" of the inquiry, would mean the exploration of all of Secretary Mellon's private affairs and would make it necessary that "every activity of the prohibition unit be brought before this committee."

"Everybody knows that with Mr. Pinchot and Mr. Heney back of it," Senator Watson said, "there would be no end to the investigation. There would be strewn over a decade of gossip and scandal and there would come an era of vituperation unequalled in the political annals of America."

MISSING GIRL IS HOME; WILL MARRY

Eliza A. Prescott's Name With That of Samuel Hess Filed at Somerville

A marriage intention filed at Somerville City Hall revealed today that Miss Eliza A. Prescott, twenty-one, who disappeared from her mother's home, No. 5 Morgan street, Somerville, in December, returned home a week ago.

Miss Prescott, according to the housekeeper at her mother's home, is now with her mother at Laconia, N. H.

Yesterday, however, a man who declared himself to be Samuel Hess, thirty-one, of No. 62 Montgomery street, Boston, a restaurant worker, filed marriage intentions at Somerville City Hall, giving the prospective bride as Eliza A. Prescott, twenty-nine, of No. 5 Morgan street.

On December 2 a man, known as "White," called for Miss Prescott at the Morgan street address and she went out with him, saying she was going to the "movies."

She did not return. Her mother offered $100 reward for information as to her whereabouts and Police Chief Kendall of Somerville sent circulars throughout the country. Then was her third departure from home. Once before she was located in Boston and a second time at the home of her sister in Brooklyn.

This time she went to neither of the former places. Not until a week ago, according to the housekeeper, was word received from her. Then she telephoned her mother and said she would meet her in Boston.

The meeting took place and the daughter went home.

Early in the week her mother took her to Laconia, N. H., for a ten-day vacation. According to the housekeeper, her mother has no knowledge of the marriage intention having been filed.

When the grandmother died a year ago she disposed of an estate of $88,000 by her will. Her two grandsons were amply provided for, so she left the bulk of her estate to charity and made only the $1,240 bequests to the boys.

The executor suggested he be allowed to turn the money over to the city chamberlain to keep against the day when Mr. Garland feels in need of $1,240.

What the trustee doesn't know is that a "Platonic love farm" on Rumford's Bar with its bevy of short-haired blondes, keeps Mr. Garland occupied during the Summer and Fall months and that a similar farm down in Louisiana demands his attention in the Winter time.

Garland and his platonic playmates are expected back from the South shortly, but those who know him declare that there isn't much likelihood of his becoming wildly excited about the predicament of the executor of his grandmother's estate.

Pickets and Non-Union Employes Stage Free-for-All Battle in Lagrange St.

A clash between non-union garment workers and pickets, in which girls screamed and men engaged in a free-for-all fight, occurred in Lagrange street today and resulted in the arrest of four of the fighters.

Policemen from the Lagrange street station, located within a stone's throw of the place of the pitched battle, cleared the street with difficulty.

The trouble occurred in front of the factory of the Colonial Cap Company. Union pickets accosted the workers as they entered the place today.

The trouble started when several men approached Rita Patt of No. 15 Lorna street, Roxbury, bookkeeper for the cap company. She screamed for help.

A number of men who had already entered the factory answered her call while a score of workers, many of them girls, who had just arrived in front of the building, took part in the turmoil which ensued.

The screams of the girl brought a detail of police under the direction of Special Officers Hartigan and Mullins. A free-for-all fight, in which the girls as well as the men were taking part, was at its height when the police arrived.

One enthusiastic combatant threw a heavy book which knocked over a woman spectator. Four of the active combatants were taken by the officers. At police station they gave their names as Jacob Miller, thirty-three, of Revere, and Jacob Kossum, thirty-one, of Dorchester, of the union forces, and Harry Cohen of Dorchester and Abraham Cohen of Roxbury, employes of the cap concern.

Several officers remained on duty in front of the factory to prevent further clashes between the workers and pickets.

MOTHER OF 18 CHILDREN, BIGAMIST, CHARGED WITH FORGERY

WOMAN, 50, CONFESSES DUAL LIFE

Serves Term in Jail, Wife of Carpenter Then Marries Rich Philadelphian

Philadelphia, April 12.—Anna Beswick, fifty, mother of eighteen, who admitted bigamy to rid herself, as she said, of three men who had utilized her imprudent act for blackmailing purposes, was given a hearing today on charges of forgery and pretence preferred as a result of her alleged forgery of the name of President Judge J. W. Martin in letters which enabled her to borrow money.

She was held in $5,000 bail.

The three men accused of blackmailing turned upon Mrs. Beswick and declared her a "taxicab friend," possessed of an insatiable desire to ride in a cab for hours. They asserted all the money they received from her was in payment of taxi bills and payments of loans they advanced her. They denied ever blackmailing her to the extent of $50,000, as she charged.

Mrs. Beswick's second husband, William C. Martin, wealthy president of a cold storage concern, was in conference with Assistant District Attorney Maurer to determine what charge can justly be placed against Mrs. Beswick. Her bigamous marriage to him makes a tangle of the case.

SERVED PRISON SENTENCE.

Beswick, a carpenter, declared he "wants to forget about the whole sordid case." He admitted his wife served six months in prison in 1917 for passing a bad check.

Police were inclined to character ize Mrs. Beswick a very cunning woman and to doubt her blackmail story.

In her confession of bigamy the woman admitted a dual life—with her children and first husband by day and her wealthy second spouse by night.

Apparently neither Beswick, by whom she said she had eighteen children, nor Martin, whom she declared she married last February and from whom she said she had received $50,000 to pay blackmailers, knew of her double life.

KEPT IN IGNORANCE.

She said she had kept them in ignorance through various subterfuges. Martin married her, she said, in the belief that she had been divorced.

Mrs. Beswick was taken into custody outside the courtroom of Judge J. Willis Martin, whose name she is alleged to have forged to letters. Through alleged representations in these letters she is charged with having obtained $5,000 from William Shuman and Ralph Hawthorne, who had the warrant issued for her arrest.

Mrs. Beswick named Herbert Russ, John McCoy and Erwin Hamlin as her blackmailers. All three were arrested on charges of extortion, conspiracy and blackmail.

DISCOVERED SECRET.

Mrs. Beswick said they had learned of her double life through driving her in a taxicab from the modest home of her children and their father in West Philadelphia to the more pretentious residence of Martin, in Fox Chase, a northern suburb.

BROOKLINE 'ANTI-TENEMENT WAR'

PROFESSOR'S WIFE FIGHTS FOR COREY HILL RESTRICTIONS

Mrs. Horace L. Howe of Corey Hill, Brookline, her children, Martha B., 3½ years old, and Henry Dunster Howe, 3 years old, and at lower right their self-contained home, the only kind that Mrs. Howe wants in that fashionable district of the "richest town in the world." A Boston woman, however, has won a fight to build two-family houses, like that at the top of the pictures, after being twice repulsed and Mrs. Howe says she is going to make things hot for Brookline building department as a result of its change of front in the controversy. The victorious Boston woman in the case is to occupy one of the "tenements" as the scornful folk of Corey Hill call them and she says it will be a real "love nest."

WOMAN WINS COREY HILL BATTLE

Barred twice within ten days from Corey Hill, Mrs. Minnie Tucker, who lives now on Myrtle street in Boston's West End, is going to have her "love nest" on Brookline's fashionable height after all.

The wealthy anti-Tuckerites on the hill were celebrating their second supposed victory, when Town Building Commissioner Ernest Lyon discovered an error in his reckoning and withdrew his revocation of Mrs. Tucker's building permit.

Now Mrs. Horace L. Howe of No. 142 Summit avenue, the leader in opposition to the two two-family houses being built by Mrs. Tucker, says she will "force some people in the Building Department out of their jobs" as a result of their latest decision.

Mrs. Howe, whose husband is a professor at Harvard Dental School, decided that the old residents on the hill do not want their families to feel the influence of "the floating population of apartment house," she herself has four young children.

The revocation of Mrs. Tucker's permit, now withdrawn, followed an earlier one-day suspension of the permit.

Mrs. Tucker's building lots are at Nos. 122 and No. 124 Summit avenue, a site that commands a view of practically all of Greater Boston.

Sixteen permits were revoked after citizens in town meeting adopted a by-law excluding two-family houses from Corey Hill and other "exclusive" districts.

This by-law was the culmination of a long fight by Mrs. Howe and others, who declare they lined up owners of $1,250,000 in possessed property valuation in favor of the restricted zone plan.

Town authorities declared permits already issued could be withdrawn in all cases where work had not actually commenced. After Mrs. Howe convinced the authorities that work on Mrs. Tucker's second house had not begun, Mrs. Tucker's permit was suspended.

Entrance was first forced into the A. & P. store, which adjoins the tailoring shop, and a hole was cut through a cellar partition between the two stores. Top coats, ready-made suits and a large quantity of cloth were taken by the thieves.

THIRD HOLDUP ANNOYS DRIVER OF TRUCK

Three bandits in a motor car made three different attempts to hold up Samuel Sternberg, a truck driver of No. 63 Hoosom street, Chelsea. The third attempt was made in a lunch room in Kendall square, Cambridge.

"Give us $10 and we'll let you alone," the leader of the bandits told Sternberg.

There were scores of people within calling distance and Sternberg turned the bandit down cold. The bandit walked off.

The trip first stopped Sternberg's truck on Austin street, Charlestown. They demanded money. Sternberg stepped on the gas, his truck ran over the pavement and he escaped.

When Sternberg reached Prison Point Bridge the three bandits were waiting for him again. A second time he eluded them.

Finally, when he entered the lunch room and the bandit leader again appeared, it was too much for the truck driver. He lost his temper, called the police and gave the number of the license tags on the car of the bandits.

Police are investigating the owner of the car who lives in Quincy.

BOY NEARLY WEDS HALF SISTER

Father Arrives in Time to Prevent Ceremony; Youth Is Punished

The marriage of a youth, twenty-two, to his half-sister, aged fourteen, was narrowly averted in South Boston court before Judge Day today.

Instead of wedding bells for the couple, the brother was sentenced to a year in jail and the young sister was returned to New York state, where she will be turned over to a Children's Aid Society.

The tragedy in the courtroom was prevented by the arrival of the father of the pair, Christopher Derens of Mt. Vernon, New York, who has conducted a country-wide search for his two children since they disappeared from New York on January 21.

The youth, Frank Derens, and his half-sister, Katherine, left New York and came to Boston. They secured a room at No. 165 D street, South Boston, where they lived as man and wife.

The apparent youth of the girl aroused the suspicions of the neighbors and the matter was reported to the police. Derens admitted to Sergeant Coughlin of the South Boston station house, that the girl was not his wife, but that they had been living together as a married couple.

The young man was arrested on statutory charges, but the girl was not taken into custody.

Derens was arraigned before Judge Day today and admitted the truth of the charges against him. He told the court, however, that he loved the girl and was anxious to marry her. He said they had been sweethearts for years and informed the court that the girl was old enough to be legally married.

Judge Day decided that the marriage of the pair was the best solution and he directed that ceremony to be performed by the clerk of the court. A marriage license was secured, waiver of the five-day law was waived and the couple were standing before the clerk when the father rushed in.

Judge Day, without leaving the bench, sentenced Derens to a year in jail. The young man appealed and bail was set at $1,000.

FIGHTS VERDICT IN "BATHTUB" LOVE SUIT

New York, April 12.—Mrs. Gertrude Schroeder, who was tried by her sister, the Princess Elaine von de Lippe-Lippe, for alienation of the affections of Prince Nicholas von der Lippe-Lippe, today filed an application to open the default case last December and to stay proceedings on the award January 28 by a sheriff's jury of $100,000, the total amount asked for.

Mrs. Schroeder said the default was due to the fact that she had gone to Germany to see her son, who was ill, and counsel had told her that no action could be taken for a year. She denied charges involving her and Prince Lippe-Lippe. There was no affection between the Prince and her sister that she could have alienated if she had cared to, she declared.

WANTS ERIN TO PRINT HER OWN CURRENCY

Dublin, April 12.—Darrell Figgis, a leading independent member of the Dail, has raised the question of a separate Irish Free State currency. The Free State having the right to abandon the British currency and establish one of its own. According to Figgis the trade balances would be sufficient to be able to point on per cent. credit the same number of notes as she now has in circulation, although Treasury notes and on the basis of her currency should be able to buy 400 English pound at seventeen shillings six pence.

At present the Free State, in addition to using the produce of an English mint and paying England a profit on the manufacture.

CRUISERS SALUTE AS AUSTRALIA SINKS

Taken with hundreds of floral tributes the ship was towed to the scuttling point, accompanied by two Australian and five British cruisers. There her sea valves were opened and she slowly settled beneath the water, while the cruisers fired salutes and airplanes circled overhead.

KILLS EMPLOYER TO SAVE OWN LIFE

FIGURES IN FARM TRAGEDY

Mrs. Johanna Tell who confessed she killed Charles Blair, Killingworth, Ct., farmer, after repulsing his advances. Blair and Mrs. Tell's fourteen-year-old daughter, Lillian, are also shown above.

DOUBT CAST ON MRS. TELL'S CONFESSION

Killingworth, Ct., April 12.—(A. P.)—A desperate mother who feared for the safety of her tubercular child killed Charles Blair, Connecticut farmer, as he crept and then broke into the bedchamber of the youth's farm home.

Police today are asking the men who, following the finding of Blair's body bearing axe and pistol wounds in the spot his former housekeeper and confessed slayer, Mrs. Johanna Tell, said it would be found.

Police are asking the men found in whom they said, the nature of the wounds and conditions of the body conflict with the story Mrs. Tell related to District Attorney Molloney of the Bronx, New York.

Connecticut State troopers prepare to take Mrs. Tell to Middletown this today, where Prosecutor Hagen, Middlesex County, will interrogate her.

Mrs. Tell, in her confession, said she killed Blair last Tuesday when he attempted to attack her with an axe. They had been quarreling, she declared, over the affections of the young boy's mother and Blair, through jealousy, she related, and then as he was attempting to flee, backed his truck into the axe.

The condition of Blair's body as first found would indicate that he was killed by the axe and not by pistol wounds, officers say.

Part of Mrs. Tell's confession is being withheld. It is said to refer to threats by Blair that if she refused his advances he would tell the story mentions to her 14-year-old daughter, Lillian.

EX-WIFE IS FIGHTING THAW

Evelyn Nesbit Opposes His Release on Behalf of Her Son, Russell Thaw

Philadelphia, April 12.—Evelyn Nesbit, divorced wife of Harry K. Thaw, today filed in Common Pleas Court a petition to be allowed to intervene in the proceedings to determine Thaw's sanity by jury trial, which begins Monday.

The petition sets forth that Thaw is insane and is dangerous, as he is mentally unfit and will if released, "devastate his own estate and the life insurance of his wife." Thaw is estimated to be worth about $1,000,000.

Evelyn Nesbit's petition avers that her son's right of inheritance in any estate that Thaw may leave should be protected.

Thaw recently filed a petition in which he was joined by his mother to have his sanity tested. The court granted the petition and hearings of his estate were permitted to many physicians to examine him.

The alienists named for Thaw have agreed that he is sane.

Thaw has been confined in the Pennsylvania Hospital for Mental and Nervous Diseases in West Philadelphia since 1913.

Thaw and his former wife once fought sensational court battles over the custody of the boy which settled unfavorably for her as far as obtaining support for the child was concerned.

25 'YOUTHS' PAY $10 EACH TO STUDY LOVE

Sign Up for Six Weeks' Course to Get Inside Views of the Divine Passion

New York, April 12.—(U.S.S.)—Twenty-five students have enrolled in $10 apiece here to learn all about love and married life in their biological, esthetic and spiritual aspects.

It was the preliminary lecture in the six-weeks' course in matrimony at the Central Y. M. C. A. in Brooklyn. The $10 fee is intended to keep out the light-minded and to keep the study group down to rhinoceros proportions.

Rev. Dr. Harry L. Reeser, outlining the course, said, in an address on the biological phase of love and marriage is the most important. At the end of his talk he permitted questions.

"How do you know if you're in love?" was one of the most earnest young men asked.

INSTINCT WILL TELL.

Instinct will tell you that," turned the doctor, rather nonplussed, for "You'll know when you've got the right girl."

He said himself was for the man and eighteen for the girl were the right ages for matrimony, unless one of those problems mentioned his main desire. Then nineteen acked.

"WHAT IS LOVE?"

That was a poser. But a 22-year-young man volunteered his aid. He concluded, "I think the best love is the way of a dog's tail and the smile of a child."

There is misdirected man, some wise guy, and included as to half concluded."

MAKE IT A BUSINESS.

"Men marry for love, but women make a business of it."

Dr. Reeser scoffed at that and countered with the statement that women are more natural than men, most of them marry for love, and scarcely ever take thousands into consideration.

Dr. Will H. Powell, director of staff of the Brooklyn Nursery and Infants' Hospital, will preside over the course.

Supper Dance at Country Club To Be Smart Affair, Says Betty Alden

By BETTY ALDEN.

THE Country Club will be the scene of one of the smartest affairs of the season on Thursday evening, April 24.

It is that date a subscription supper dance will be held there chiefly due to the enterprise of Mrs. Charles P. Greenough 2nd and others of her jolly cronies.

Last year saw the first of these dances which promises to become annual functions keenly anticipated. The Copley Plaza was the setting for last season's dance, but this time the committee thought the Country Club would offer a pleasant change of scene.

Mrs. Oliver Wolcott (Photo by Waite)

Coming as it does when society's dancing season is really officially over, this late-season affair is especially appreciated. Which means that the week of the 20th will stand out prominently among the directors of Terpsichore, for on the following night comes the novel Submarine Ball at Horticultural Hall.

The young matrons, with Mrs. Greenough, are responsible for the supper dance on the 24 are Mrs. Oliver Wolcott, who, a little over a year ago, was Sybil Appleton; Mrs. Theodore Frothingham, Jr., with as girlish-looking as her Eleanor Fabyan days; Mrs. Gerald D. Boardman, Mrs. John E. Bolles, one of society's delightful daughters; Mrs. Donald A. Hammond, Mrs. J. Lewis Bremer, who spends much of her time on the tennis courts; Mrs. Arthur L. Devens, Mrs. Elliot S. Draper, Mrs. Reginald C. Foster, whose vivacity and originality are quite as notable as her red-gold hair; Mrs. Dudley B. Howe, Mrs. Francis B. Lothrop (Eleanor Abbott), handsome Mrs. George von L. Meyer, Jr.; Mrs. David Sears Orr (Nell White), one of society's newest brides; Mrs. Charles Choate 2nd in "Wake Up," the Vincent show.

A special attraction for the Country Club affair will be the music by Munton Goodman's orchestra, which plays for the 400 Club of New York.

BOSTON will be represented at the wedding of Miss Frances Hoeffler and Douglas P. Kingston, which will be solemnized in Buffalo on May 3.

Among the nine bridesmaids will be Miss May Bremer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. Parker Bremer of Marlboro street and Miss Lloyd B. Sanderson, Jr., of New York, who was formerly Miss Rosanna Foster of Boston. She is a sister of Miss Cornelia Foster, whose wedding will be an important nuptial event of the Spring.

Mrs. Frederick G. Crane, Jr., of Dalton, will be matron of honor at the wedding of Miss Hoeffler to Mr. Kingston.

'CHI-NAMEL' IS DURABLE AS FLOOR PAINT

In preserving and beautifying the home, the value of painting is far more generally recognized now than it was in the past, due to energetic informative campaigns waged by paint manufacturers under the well known slogan "Save the Surface and You Save All."

Spring's house painting has now become an accepted practice among all householders. The question of what kind of paint to use has always vexed the householder, the majority of whom know little about paints and how to use them.

J. B. Hunter Company, a hardware firm, located at No. 60 Summer street, Boston, has been studying the problem for years and has finally procured a house paint—"Chi-Namel"—which is manufactured by The Ohio Varnish Company and which they are convinced best suits the needs of the home owner. The paint surface is remarkably durable, will retain its gloss and lustre for years, and is impervious to water. In short, "Chi-Namel" will give the best wearing qualities for the greatest length of time.

Years of experimentation have been carried on by The Ohio Varnish Company to determine a formula for the proper proportions of lead and zinc combined with a pigmental liquid composed of specially refined linseed oil and China wood oil dryer, that would dry. "Chi-Namel" house paint by natural oxidation without baking the oil.

Through a scientific combination of these materials, a paint film of remarkable durability has been produced. All materials are carefully compounded by expert paint mixers, and ground to the last degree of fineness in specially designed paint mills as illustrated.

The result is "Chi-Namel," a self leveling paint with the greatest hiding power and easiest brushing qualities that result in a film of paint of proper depth and sufficient hardness and smoothness to resist atmospheric conditions for a maximum time.

ONE CHILD DEAD, TWO DYING, FROM GAS

Mother Finds Them Unconscious on Kitchen Floor When She Returns

Woonsocket, R. I., April 12.—Two-year-old Normand Peloquin is dead and his sisters, Lillian, one year, and Jeanne D'Arc, three months, are dying, as a result of gas poisoning in their home, No. 408 Front street.

The children were found senseless on the kitchen floor by their mother, Mrs. Adelard Peloquin. According to the mother, she went out of the house for ten minutes to do an errand, leaving a gas flame burning under a hot water boiler. When she returned the flame was still lighted, she declared, but the children had been overcome.

A policeman was used and Lillian and Jeanne D'Arc were partially revived. According to the physicians the two girls probably will not live.

According to the gas employes the house was redolent of fresh gas when they arrived. The medical examiner pronounced the death of Normand due to gas poisoning, accidental.

IMMIGRATION LIMIT OF 200,000 REJECED

Washington, April 12.—Nearing a final vote on the Johnson bill, the House today rejected an amendment to limit, after July 1, 1926, the number of immigrants admitted to the United States to 200,000 annually.

The amendment, offered by Representative Rogers of Lowell would have provided a new basis of selection—quotas for each country bearing the same proportion to the total admitted as the number of persons in the United States in 1920 who came from that country or whose ancestors did, or to the total population.

The amendment was similar to one sponsored by Senator Reed of Pennsylvania, except the Reed amendment would fix the maximum at 100,000.

ASKS STREET LIGHT CONTRACT BE HELD

The Finance Commission today asked the City Council to withhold action on the proposed street lighting contract with the Boston Consolidated Gas Light Company, for ten years, until the Edison Electric Illuminating Company estimate what it will cost to light the city with electricity.

The commission expects to receive from the Edison Company definite information regarding the number of gas lamps that can be replaced with electric lamps, the cost of such replacement, and the terms under which the Edison Company will undertake the extension of its street lighting system.

AUCTION ROOMS OF MODERN DESIGN

A far call is it indeed from the first auctioneers of biblical history, sitting cross-legged in the public squares, haranguing for hours with raucous passers-by before making a sale, to the very modern and businesslike public auction rooms of Harry Benjamin & Company, No. 118 Canal street.

The public auction has long been recognized as a necessary adjunct to modern business.

Springfield Milk War Drives Price to Seven Cents

Springfield, April 12.—The recent retail milk price reductions have resulted in a price-cutting war between chain store systems here that today sent the price for the day only to seven cents a quart, the lowest in fifteen years.

The rival systems, basing their prices on volume of sales, are bidding for patronage and the result is eight-cent bottled milk at their stores, while retail milk concerns get thirteen cents for milk delivered.

BERLIN ACCEPTS 'PRINCIPLE' OF DAWES PLAN

Berlin, April 12.—In absence of final official announcement of the Marx government's acquiescence, it is confirmed on the highest authority that Germany can be considered as accepting "in principle."

Germany does not wish to be precluded from its efforts to obtain certain alterations. These include evacuation of the Ruhr and fixing of total reparations in advance. It is understood the government will attempt to obtain both.

Announcement of Germany's actual position will be made Monday. It is not anticipated the state premiers will attempt to sabotage the government's intentions, but Chancellor Marx is understood to be prepared to go ahead regardless of opposition.

CHARGE FULLER DRAGS CHURCH INTO CAMPAIGN

Hatfield Says Gubernatorial Candidate Is Using Masons in His Fight

Charges that Lieutenant-Governor Fuller is dragging religion and secret organizations into his campaign for the Republican nomination for Governor were made today in a statement by Charles E. Hatfield, campaign manager for State Treasurer Frank G. Jackson, who also seeks the nomination.

Mr. Hatfield declares that Joseph E. Warner, defeated by Mr. Fuller for the nomination for Lieutenant-Governor several years ago, is not for Mr. Fuller, but is for Mr. Jackson.

At a Masonic banquet recently held, Warner introduced Mr. Fuller and Mr. Hatfield charges that since that time Mr. Fuller himself has been using this incident as the basis for reports that the former enemies are now close together.

Mr. Hatfield declared that it was regrettable that the Masonic order was being drawn into the campaign. As he and other Masons in the State decried the advent of partisan politics in that or any other secret order.

SKELETON FOUND IN WALTHAM CELLAR

Parts of a human skeleton, believed to have been buried for at least twenty years, were discovered by workmen digging a cellar on the McDonald property, off Daisy street, Waltham. The skull, one thigh bone, one bone of a forearm, several ribs and the lower jaw bone were found. The bones had apparently been wrapped in a burlap bag. The skeleton was buried but a foot and a half beneath the ground. Medical Examiner George W. West will view the bones.

PARTY POLITICS THREATEN TO IMPERIL PASSAGE OF BONUS

MEASURE BECOMES 'FOOTBALL'

Both Sides Seeking to Gain Credit; Legion Is Demanding Real Action

By JOHN T. LAMBERT

Washington, April 12 (Cosmopolitan).—Sturdy efforts are being made here to prevent the soldiers' bonus from being wrecked by party politics.

For five years the Democrats in Congress have been the constant friend of the bonus. Except here and there, where some old time Bourbon has wormed his way into the party councils, the Democrats have, to a man, supported the justice of the contention that the men who fought in the World War are entitled to compensation for the direct loss they sustained by being taken away from their regular trades, professions and employments, and being put into the confinement or trench at a wage which was incapable of supporting either themselves or their families.

CHANGES IN CONGRESS.

The bonus issue is responsible for great changes in Congress. In the last elections the Democrats made substantial gains due in good measure to the obtuse Republicans who were willing to give a billion to the railroads, hundreds of millions to war contractors and other profiteers, but not a penny of adjusted compensation to the veterans.

Senators C. C. Dill and Burton K. Wheeler and others were sent to take their places beside Senators T. J. Robinson of Arkansas and D. I. Walsh of Massachusetts and the other reliable friends of the bonus. The independent Republicans were sent from the West by the joint votes of the farmers and workers. The House made the same ratio of progressive gains and virtually every new member of the lower branch is an out-and-out supporter of the bonus.

TABLES MAY BE TURNED.

There is danger now that the tables may be turned. The bonus bill that passed the House found the Republicans overwhelmingly in favor of it. The bill as it stands is certain to meet veto of the President; it is said, if he insists upon asserting his own view above that of the majority.

But here and there an occasional Democrat seems ready, under the guise of friendship for the soldiers, to load down the bill with amendments which are expected to provoke a Presidential veto. It is charged they care less for the success of the bill and the welfare of the veterans than they do for the opportunity thus afforded to play politics in the home lobby will force the President to run the risk of losing the soldier voters.

The veterans have at last come to a realization of their own strength. It is understood the Legion has gained 140,000 members recently, and that the veterans, like the farmers of the Northwest, look sullenly upon those who have treated them with treachery and little relief.

BEFORE BABIES WERE BORN

Mrs. Oswald Benefited by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Girardville, Pa.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound before my first baby came. It keeps me in perfect health and I am on my feet getting meals and doing all my housework until an hour before the baby is born. A friend told me to take it and I have used ten bottles since. I recommend it. I recommend the Vegetable Compound whenever I can. Just yesterday a friend was telling me how miserable she felt, and said, 'If you start taking Lydia E. Pinkham's you will feel fine.' Now she is taking it."—Mrs. P. J. Oswald, Jr., 406 West Ogden St., Girardville, Pa.

SUIT WILL BARE LIFE SECRETS OF SEARLES

non. He had life-size paintings of the boy made and hung them in his bed room where he could constantly gaze at them during his fatal illness.

CLAIM WAS DENIED.

When Searles died counsel for Angelo entered claim which was denied by the estate, but a settlement of $10,000 was eventually made on the former bell boy. It was reported at the time.

Angelo is likely to figure as a witness at the trial in New York. The proceedings will centre about Victor Albert Searles, the nephew defendant who recently lost his wife at a Florida resort and was indicted in Boston in connection with persons said to have been active in the Boston blackmail ring.

Mr. Curtis was associated with Mr. Whipple as counsel for Victor Albert Searles to break the will, under which the Searles millions went to Walker.

The attorney sets forth he developed evidence which, on trial, would have cast grave doubt on the competency of the testator.

This, it is explained, was based on his discovery that a peculiar relationship existed between the old man and young Ellison.

After a hurried night trip by automobile Mr. Curtis found the principal witness in an obscure boarding house in the Catskills.

Ellison, who had been spending time by Walker, the lawyer charges, was receiving $50 a week from Walker and had been warned he would forfeit a legacy of $10,000 under the will if he had interviews with counsel for Victor Searles.

The attorney says he won over Ellison, brought him back to New York and turned him over to the law firm of Olcott, Bonynge, McManus and Ernest. The papers in the late Ellison also received a settlement from the Searles estate, but do not reveal the amount.

LAWYER ASKS $325,000.

For these services and for acting for Victor Albert Searles in a divorce action won by his wife, Mr. Curtis says he received only $25,000. He asks an additional $325,000 calling it reasonable compensation for his work.

The money being fought over goes further back than the aloof Edward F. Searles. It was made by the tight fisted Mark Hopkins, associate of Collis P. Huntington, Leland Stanford and Crocker, the "Big Four" in the railroad and mining development of the West.

Mark Hopkins left to his widow something between $20,000,000 and $40,000,000. They had no children, but had adopted a laborer, thereafter known as Timothy Hopkins.

In 1884 Mrs. Hopkins returned to Massachusetts, her native State, and started building a $2,000,000 home at Great Barrington.

Searles was employed to handle the interior decorations.

He and Mrs. Hopkins were married three years later, when she was sixty-seven and he forty. Four years later she died, leaving him the Hopkins fortune. Timothy Hopkins contested her will and received a settlement of $2,000,000. At the lower court trial, a sensational one, Searles explained he married Mrs. Hopkins "for love and for her money."

From then until the day of his death little or nothing was known of the Methuen recluse, his interests and habits.

The additions to his home were chiefly stone walls and the place became a mine apart from the village. His abhorrence of normal social contracts puzzled all acquaintances.

His estate was estimated at between $45,000,000 and $50,000,000 at the time of his death.

According to the transfer tax report in February, 1925, however, it amounted only to $25,000,000—less than he was said to have received from the Hopkins fortune.

To Victor Searls, estranged from his uncle, was left only $250,000. As he prepared to contest the will there were anonymous reports the old man had been murdered. His body was exhumed months after burial and an autopsy established death from natural causes.

About this time the nephew, who now lives at Atlantic City, was named as victim of a Boston blackmail plot.

It was arranged, according to the charge, that he "should be discovered with certain women in a compromising situation." It was charged he gave a lawyer $50,000 for the dismissal of one of the women.

A few months after Victor Searles took the preliminary steps toward contesting his uncle's will settlement was announced, but all concerned refused to reveal the amount involved. Mr. Curtis reveals it as almost one-fifth of the estate.

The $4,150,000 was paid to a trust fund established by Sherman Whipple, Victor Searles' attorney of record in the contest, and his son-in-law, Lathrop Withington, Jr. Curtis declares, and it was agreed all counsel fees and expenses should be paid from the fund.

WHIPPLE'S FEE SECRET.

For his services in obtaining evidence and building up a case, the attorney declares, Mr. Whipple paid him $25,000 "on account." Subsequently he continues, the Boston attorney advised him Victor Searles would pay no more and did not wish Mr. Whipple to share his fee with Mr. Curtis.

The size of the Whipple fee is not revealed, but may be brought out in trial.

Part of the Curtis services consisted of obtaining letters written to Ellison by Albert F. Searles. Concerning these, he declared, Mr. Whipple wrote him:

"I hope that in nothing I have said or written have I seemed in any way to fail in appreciation of the importance of the Searles letters which Angelo showed to you and of the courteous action of Judge Olcott in the Rhode matter.

"They were in Mr. Searles' handwriting. They spoke for themselves and gave a clear picture of the life Mr. Searles led and the proclivities which affected his mentality."

Mr. Curtis' services in the divorce case are declared to have been in obtaining an alimony agreement with Mrs. Etta F. Searles, after Victor Searles "had become acquainted and much involved with a woman by the name of Irene Bodmeier, whom he has since married."

FAVORABLE REPOHT FOR BONUS BILL

Washington, April 12 (I.N.S.).—The soldiers' bonus bill was favorably reported to the Senate today by the Finance Committee. The bill as reported was practically identical with that passed by the House, providing for paid-up insurance policies to World War veterans in lieu of cash. The principal difference in the two bills was an amendment adopted today including 11,000 women who saw service as yeomanettes within the provisions of eligibility.

2 PHALANX CLUB OFFICERS, FINED $1,000, APPEAL

The Phalanx Orchestra Club, Inc., of No. 2150 Washington street, Roxbury, and Lincoln Pope, president, and William A. Robinson treasurer, each was fined $500 today in Roxbury Court, for keeping and exposing liquor for sale.

Pope and Robinson, in addition, were sentenced to six months each in the House of Correction. They appealed.

This is an outrageous case and there is no doubt about it at all, declared Judge Weston, in passing sentence. Testimony that a seventeen-year-old girl was arrested for drunkenness as she was coming out of the building had been introduced in the case.

A charge of assisting in maintaining a liquor nuisance against the club, was dismissed by Judge Weston. J. C. Donovan, counsel for the club and officers, argued that the police had not proved an instance of a liquor sale.

Police Sergeant Walsh of the Dudley Street Station, for the prosecution, maintained that the club constituted a nuisance in the district through parties held there as late as 4 o'clock in the morning.

William Monroe Trotter, Atty. Julian D. Bonner and H. F. Daly of the Hotel Westminster, testified for the defence. Each declared that he had visited the club on several occasions but had seen no disorder served and had observed no untoward incidents.

Hill, was sentenced to five months in jail by Judge Hunsicker today on a charge of abduction of a young girl. Miss Kimball appealed. Miss Davis said she would serve her sentence, but would not appear in court in male attire. Miss Davis admitted having participated in the abduction, but said Miss Kimball, of Boston, she said.

Dr. A. W. Buck, for many years a practicing physician of Boston, died today in his 78th year. At one time he was medical examiner for the district.

BRIDE-TO-BE HELD UP BY RED TAPE

Consul Demands Proof She Will Wed in U. S.; Hub Man Sends It

A romance made fourteen years ago in a little village of Surdia, Turkey, will soon culminate in a happy wedding if marriage intentions filed in City Hall by George H. Pappas of No. 664 Massachusetts avenue, South End, reach his intended bride in Salonica, Greece, where, for lack of proof that she will be married on arrival in America, the American consul refused to grant her a passport.

Pappas, wealthy business man and proprietor of a cafe on Northampton street, South End, last saw his sweetheart, Miss Sophia P. Tackelidar, four fourteen years ago, when she was ten years old.

During the fourteen years letters were frequently exchanged, and Pappas, alone in Boston, waited until his bride should grow up and be ready to come to the United States.

During the war, Miss Tackelidar was driven from her birthplace; her father, a soldier, was killed, and her mother died from worry. With her sister and Pappas' sister she finally landed in Salonica and from there began again a love-letter romance which the wars had interrupted.

Finally Pappas, now established in business and having recently become naturalized, decided it was time to bring his intended wife to this country. Accordingly the proper affidavits were signed, but the American consul at Salonika demanded proof that she was to be married here on arrival; if not, she must remain in Greece.

Pappas was notified by his bride-to-be. He filed intentions and in five days will be given the license which now will then send to Salonica.

ETHEL KIMBALL GIVEN 5 MONTHS

Miss Ethel M. Kimball, 26, of Kimball, was on March 27 given custody of her daughter, Janice M. Wilson, who was "married" by Rev. George W. Hill of this city, to Pearl A. Davis, also from Kimball. Mr. Hill, was sentenced to five months in jail by Judge Hunsicker today on a charge of abduction of a young girl. Miss Kimball appealed. Miss Davis said she would serve her sentence, but would not appear in court in male attire. Miss Davis admitted having participated in the abduction, but said Miss Kimball, of Boston, she said.

Washington, April 12.—Any member of the United States Tariff Commission who shall participate in any vote or his family are privately interested will be impeached by the Senate decided today by a vote of 48 to 26.

The amendment is the outgrowth of a letter flight waged by the heads of the sugar beet interests against Commissioner Henry H. Glassie, who cast an adverse decision on their sugar interests.

McADOO MEN CHARGE FRAUD IN ILLINOIS

POLICE CHIEF IN CANDLER CASE IS OUSTED

Removed After Trial Growing Out of Arrest of Coca Cola Man's Wife

Atlanta, Ga., April 12.—Chief of Police James L. Beavers, the storm centre of municipal politics here for a decade, was found guilty by a police committee today for neglect of duty and swearing falsely and summarily was removed from office.

He was found not guilty of a third count, which charged him with aiding in procuring evidence for a divorce case in connection with the arrest of Mrs. Asa G. Candler, wife of the Coca Cola king, here last February.

His dismissal marked the third time Beavers has been deposed during his eleven years in office.

Beavers spent four hours entering a general denial of the accusations.

The story of his part in the arrest of Mrs. Candler, two men in an apartment occupied by a woman friend of the latter, was told to the committee by Foster Adair, prominent Atlanta business man, who assumed some responsibility for Mrs. Candler's arrest.

He declared that because of his close friendship for Candler and without the latter's knowledge, he assured members of his office staff to shadow Mrs. Candler and obtained the promise of Beavers to conduct the raid which resulted in her arrest.

He testified Mrs. Candler, mother of Candler Adams, a member of the men with whom she was taken into custody and I wanted to find out if this was true, to be exposed in a divorce case.

At the trial Beavers stated the filing of liquor in the apartment as evidence was ordered stored away, when as Recorder's Court was acquitted.

Young Candler Must Pay $22,800 to Byfield

Atlanta, Ga., April 12.—Walter S. Candler, Atlanta banker, son of Asa G. Candler, Coca Cola magnate, today was ordered by Judge Bell to pay Clyde K. Byfield, Atlanta lawyer, $22,800 for services rendered Mrs. Byfield, wife of the late Mrs. Byfield, who died in a sensational shooting affair in Atlanta.

Byfield's suit for $50,000 for services rendered Mrs. Candler in connection with her divorce suit against Candler, was dismissed by Judge Bell.

Testimony in the trial was that Mrs. Byfield received $25,000 from Candler, and that Byfield received $25,000 for his services. Byfield testified that he was to receive $50,000 for his services, but that Candler refused to pay the remaining $25,000.

Testimony at the trial was that Candler, in a letter to Byfield, stated that he would be glad to pay Byfield $50,000 for his services, but that he was unable to do so because of financial reverses in Florida. Byfield testified that he was to receive $50,000 for his services, but that Candler refused to pay the remaining $25,000.

PROCTOR IS CALLED BY OIL COMMITTEE

Washington, April 12 (I.N.S.).—William Cooper Procter of Cincinnati, one of Leonard Wood's most ardent supporters in the 1920 Republican Presidential race, was subpoenaed today to appear before the Senate public lands committee on Monday. Senator Walsh announced he would question Procter about alleged "oil deals" in the last Republican convention.

2 YEAR OLD GIRL DROWNS IN CELLAR

ASK FORD TO STATE STAND ON PRESIDENCY

Detroit, April 12 (I.N.S.).—Henry Ford has been asked by William A. Comstock, chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee, to state definitely his political intentions, as a result of his endorsement at Monday's Statewide primary for President on the Democratic ticket.

Comstock said today that in an effort to clarify the apparent ambiguity created by the Democratic endorsement of Ford after Ford had publicly declared his support to President Coolidge, he asked Ford for a clear statement of his attitude in order to release the Michigan delegates.

MANAGERS BANCROFT AND HARRIS DEVELOP SOME THEORIES

BRAVES IN GAME AT CAPITAL

By NICK FLATLEY

Washington, April 12.—The series between the teams of Bancroft and Harris is developing into a financial success, due to rain insurance, which has provided each club with $2,000 during the past two days, and into a failure so far as exercise for the athletes is concerned. They will make two more tries in this National Capital, however, then shake hands and call it a Spring season.

If the atmosphere clears today, and the moisture evaporates from the arena sufficiently today Marquard will face Zachary. After tomorrow's engagement, the Redskins will run over to Baltimore, try to sprinkle a little salt on the Orioles' tails, and then on to Philadelphia to hit the long road, which in the past few seasons has led nowhere, though the boys expect to make the debate more interesting this year.

Dave Bancroft

The weather being a little bit inclined toward umbrellas and rubbers it is customary on such days as this to inflict the usual interviews, so the young managers, Dave Bancroft and Stanley Harris, were asked how they liked their new jobs. Their stories jibe, so they are running true to form.

The little chief of the Tribe spoke as follows: "I intend to go right along and play the game today, forget all about yesterday's game and let tomorrow take care of itself. I sort of undertook for this job without knowing it, while with the Giants I was where I was field captain. I am feeling fine and believe I will be able to play as well as ever, notwithstanding that I have the responsibility of running the club."

Rube Marquard

Harris, who also is in likeable chap, just like Bancroft, chimed in as follows: "I know that being a playing manager will make me play all the harder. I have noticed this season that I am hustling like I never did before. On various occasions I suppose it was natural for me to show up a bit during past seasons but I will not feel that way again while I am manager of the Senators. I will insist on all the players hustling all the time, and will try to set them a good example. I am playing as well as ever in this series and see no reason why I will not be able to continue to do so."

RUSSIAN MASTERS BATTLE AT CHESS

New York, April 12.—It was Russian day at the Masters' chess tournament at the Hotel Alamac today with E. D. Bogoljubow, the Ukrainian representative from Kief, the leading performer, ably seconded by Alexander Alekhine, the Moscow player.

First, Bogoljubow made short work of his adjourned match with F. D. Yates of England, winning after 30 moves.

Then the battle of all the Russias began with neither willing to yield an inch. First, Bogoljubow maneuvered with his king, but later Alekhine in turn used his bishop for moving purposes. And recess interrupted the struggle before it was concluded.

Havana, April 12.—Bob Levy, manager of "Battling" Siki, sailed today for New York and let the French Senegalese fighter remain in Havana until he "gets tired or goes broke," and makes up his mind to box again.

Ruth's Golf Swing Nearly Identical With His Swing for Making Homers

NEXT to hammering out a home run in a championship game, nothing delights Babe Ruth better than to drive a golf ball "over the hill and far away." No one can match the Bambino in busting the baseball, but there are only a few professional golfers who can propel the tiny pellet as distantly as the Babe.

In the accompanying layout the Babe illustrates the start and finish of his baseball and golf swings. The Babe stands almost erect with his bat, while with the driver he leans forward slightly. However, the finish of each swing is alike. Note particularly the position of the Babe's feet at the finish of each drive. They are EXACTLY alike.

RED SOX LOOK LIKE REGULAR BALL CLUB

By FRED C. LANE

Indianapolis, Ind., April 12.—A well-conditioned ball club, one that Boston fandom can feel proud of, one that will furnish the thrill that has been lacking for three years, promises to Boston baseball fans this season.

There is no comparison between this season's aggregation with that organization led into Fenway Park a year ago. The club has been strengthened in weak spots, and though still far from being perfect, will be able to arouse the interest of baseball lovers.

CLARKE A HITTER.

McMillan is playing a fair game at the hot corner, but is weak with the bat. A reliable substitute has been added in the utility roster in Danny Clarke, who can step in if McMillan slumps too badly.

Clarke can hit. He proved that while playing for Detroit two seasons back. In the field he is not quite as reliable as McMillan.

Duffie Lee is a shooting pinched. He is first with no number two in sight.

Lee pairs up nicely with Bill Wambsganss. It is some second base combination.

BOONE SHOWING WELL.

Joe Harris is socking the ball a mile. Joe always could hit, but this season he looks better than ever.

Ike Boone, in right field, has lived up to all the good things said about him. In fact his fielding since playing with the Sox is better than his recommendation called for. He has shown his batting ability in every game played and has proven to be one of the best men on the club in a pinch.

His hits right and left handed alike with a sting in his blow that will win him favor in the minds of Boston fans.

Back of the bat there is Steve O'Neill, a veteran, who is sure to make the pitchers show at their very best when he is catching.

Chance Directing White Sox in Today's Game

Chicago, April 12.—Frank Chance, manager of the White Sox, is here ready to assume charge of the team tomorrow, when the Sox clash in an exhibition game with the Giants today. The "peerless leader" said he had fully recovered from the illness which prevented him from joining the club at the start of the training season.

WALKER SAYS HIS MANAGER DIED POOR

Newark, N. J., April 12.—"Jack didn't have a nickel," declared Mickey Walker, world's welterweight champion, when asked to give an estimate of the estate left by Jack Bulger, his manager, who died here two weeks ago. Mrs. Katherine Bulger, of Brooklyn, who applied here recently for letters of administration of Bulger's estate on the claim that she was his wife, has been investigating his affairs to ascertain his assets.

"Jack didn't have a nickel," said Walker. "He put up a bold front, but he borrowed lots of money from me. I'm not asking for it. He's dead and so far as I am concerned those debts died with him. These people can have no claim on my money just as I have made no claim for what Jack owed me."

GREAT ALEX IN FINE FETTLE THIS YEAR

Chicago, April 12.—The masterful control which made Grover Cleveland Alexander famous, appears to still be with the veteran Chicago National League pitcher, according to training camp reports. Alex faced the Wichita Falls Club of the Texas League last Sunday for four innings, allowing one hit to twelve batters with no bases on balls, and he pitched just twenty balls.

Then he retired to give some of his mound pupils a chance to show how well they had absorbed his instructions.

Alexander began his training this year in February and appears sure to realize his ambitions for another successful season.

The wrestling match between Toots Mondt and Paul Zanovich, scheduled for Monday night in Mechanics Building, has been cancelled by Promoter Tuohey, as Mondt's booking in the West makes it impossible for the conqueror of Pesek to get here, owing to a confusion over his dates. This evening Perry Saunders and "Peaches" Lyons, both of Boston will play.

NORTHEASTERN VISITS TUFTS OVAL TODAY

Northeastern's plucky baseball team invades Tufts Oval and tackles Tufts varsity in the opening contest of the 1924 season. Both teams are represented by formidable nines and the conflict looms up to be a thriller.

Bob Hunter, Tufts' premier twirler, was picked to start on the mound for the Medford college ball tossers. Hunter has had plenty of experience besides knowing most of the Northeastern batsmen.

Armand Chandonnett and Art Kattari hope to get a chance to display their wares on the rubber. Coach Fred Lake intends to give this trio of twirlers a tryout against the engineers.

Dick Bagley, who proved himself one of the best backstops at the Medford college, was behind the bat. At yesterday's workout Bagley showed Fred Lake that he is capable of holding down the vacant backstop assignment.

HOOD TEAM HITS HIGH 5-STRING TOTAL

There were no unexpected happenings at the fifth day's matches of the worlds championship candle pin tournament at the Boston Arena. The Waltham rollers, Barrow and Davidson who, coupled in the first string got 191, followed up in the second with 207 and their third was 231 for a grand three-string total of 629, won the two-man team match.

Charley Gangie of Quincy captured the high single three-string match of the day getting a total of 327 by rolling 84-97-132.

FOLLOW HIGH MAN.

The Rubber Products Industry had a joyful time on the alleys while gathering of fellow workers looked on and gave an occasional cheer. But honors went to the five-man team of the Hood Rubber Company, which made a grand total of 1,416.

Individual honors for high single in this group went to Sullivan of U. S. Rubber Company, who negotiated 125. Kelly of the Hood Rubber Company did best in the high three-string, knocking over a total of 306.

Would prefer to hear from the St. Andrew's A. A. of Jamaica Plain, Winthrop Legion, North Cambridge or any teams of their calibre. Plenty of star ball players are preparing for berths on the nine.

The following will be seen in the pitcher's box: Happy Kenneally, Bill Tacelli, and Lefty Burrough, Munzio Cometta and Ring will take care of first base, Chuck Sloan, short; Dorgan, third base; Johnson, Arthur Sullivan, Erlick, Steve Margone, Olson are working hard for other unmentioned berths.

The initial game of the series to decide the Greater Lynn Church title will be played this evening at the Lynn Y. M. C. A. between Stephens and Central Congregational.

Kelley and Groh Out of Giants' Lineup

Indianapolis, April 12.—Heinie Groh and George Kelley, infield stars of the New York Giants, it is feared, will not be able to start the season with the club.

Groh is out of the game with an injured leg, while Kelley is suffering from an injured neck. The loss of these stars would handicap the Giants at the start of the season.

LARSEN TAKEN TO HOSPITAL AFTER HIS DEFEAT BY KELLY

HAMBONE WINS IN SIXTH

By JACK CONWAY

Hambone Kelly is at the top of the world once more.

The mighty South Boston socker crushed Wolf Larsen after six rounds of furious fighting at the Commercial A. C. show at Mechanics Building.

Larsen, badly battered, but still game, was knocked out standing up.

Larsen is at the City Hospital being treated for bruises on the body. Kelly was treated for a paralean for fractured hand bones.

A terrific left hand smash to the jaw sent Larsen down for the count of nine early in the sixth round. Larsen was dazed when he regained his feet. Hambone saw that Larsen's strength was gone, that the Wolf's courage was the only asset he had left.

Kelly drove in close and riddled Larsen's body with smashing left and right hand punches. He forced Wolf into a neutral corner and beat him back against the post of the ring.

Larsen was helpless, unable to lift his hands to defend himself, but he still managed to keep of his feet. He nodded weakly to Hambone that he couldn't fight any longer.

Referee Johnny Brassill stepped between the warriors and awarded the contest to Hambone. A few seconds later Larsen collapsed in his corner and it was necessary to assist him from the ring.

Meanwhile enthusiasm was rampant among the Kelly supporters. They surged down around the ring and gave the mighty Hambone the greatest ovation a winning fighter has received in Boston in years.

TOUGH BATTLE.

Boston and New England fans like a puncher. They can still hear the echo of John L. Sullivan's terrific punches which gave the fans the thrill at Mosko Hall years ago.

It was a hard, gruelling battle all the way.

Larsen, although defeated, made a creditable showing. In the fourth session he had Hambone groggy from a deadly left hook to the jaw. Hambone sagged under the wallop, but the Wolf didn't realize how badly he had hurt his opponent and all after Kelley had an opportunity to recover from the effects of the wallop. Kelly was in poor condition when the round ended.

The betting was ten to four with Hambone the favorite at the start, but after Larsen's spectacular work in the fourth frame the odds shifted to ten to seven with the Wolf on the long end of the wagering.

Larsen weighed 173 pounds. Hambone 167.

Larsen's showing was rather remarkable when it is remembered that only two months ago he was operated upon for appendicitis.

As for Hambone, he is once more the Kayo King.

INCIDENTALLY WE PICKED HAMBONE TO WIN.

Vic Hirsh of Malden stopped Joe Pangrazzo of Quincy in two rounds at the Arena Thursday.

Jim Maloney, South Boston's new heavyweight, stopped Battling Haley of Haverhill in the second. Al Maloney scored a couple of knockdowns Hance went down without being hit and the referee stopped the bout.

Irish Kid Williams of Worcester disposed of Harry Foley of the North End in eight rounds.

Last Night's Bouts

At Lewiston, Jimmy Deery of Portland outpointed Bing Conroy of Lewiston.

At Manchester, N. H., Battling Mahoney won from Jack Dempsey in ten bouts.

At Nashua—Martin Flaherty, Jr., knocked out Jimmy Burns in the second round.

At Fall River—Mick Madden defeated Joe Hinds in eight rounds.

At Norwich, Ct., Kitty Smith defeated Eddy Smith, Union, round.

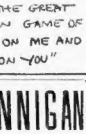
JIM HENNIGAN ON SCRATCH IN RACE TODAY

Close to a hundred lightly clad athletes were sent away with the bark of the starter's gun in the fourteenth annual ten-mile road race of the Cathedral Y. M. C. A. from the latter's clubhouse, the starting point, on Union Park street.

Many of the prominent long distance runners wondered their way from the clubhouse through Harrison avenue to Massachusetts avenue, through Edison Everett square heading to the right up Columbia road to Bird Hill and down to Wolfe Hill street, the turning point, where the runners head back to the starting point over the same course.



Thomas Hennigan

Among the prominent athletes to get away were Jimmie Hennigan and his brother, Tom, who has been connected with the road race cases of late. Jimmie, the son of Dorchester, holds the Irish A. C. Trophy and Tom is jumping along well.

Jimmie Hennigan

Others who were hoping the watchful eyes of the spectators were James Cleary, Wallie Carlson, Ralph Granara, John Hyde, Anastos Struzes, Hogie Tinsley, E. F. Stevens and William Peters.

This being the last big run previous to the B. A. A. Marathon on next Saturday, it brought forth a large gathering of spectators, which crowded the course closely and continued to see the plucky lads plodding along through the dust-settled roads and up on the sidewalk to avoid the heavy traffic in places like Upham's Corner.

JACK McCLELLAN IS WORCESTER WINNER

Worcester, April 12.—Jack McClellan of Boston knocked out Pat McNaney of Worcester, in the third round of a ten-round main bout. It was a slugging fight and McClellan put over the lucky punch. Mickey Hilaire of Holy Cross Orchard won the decision over Joe Favaro of Worcester in six rounds, and Dark Cloud Gearin of Holyoke won on a technical knock out over Harry Long in four rounds.

Leading "the Wolf" to Slaughter

Wolf Larsen is at the City Hospital, badly bruised and beaten, following his bout with Hambone Kelly—the victim of one of the biggest blunders in the history of boxing in Boston.

Larsen, only recently released from the hospital, where he underwent an operation for appendicitis, was literally led to slaughter.

It was a physical impossibility for him to be fit for any kind of strenuous exercise after such a short layoff, but he was forced to battle one of the toughest fighting men in the ring today.

Many of the city's leading surgeons declare that it takes at least a year for a man to fully recover after an operation of this kind.

Larsen should never have been allowed to enter the ring and it would seem that better judgment on the part of the Boxing Commission, the promotors or the managers could have prevented the disgraceful scene enacted in the Mechanics Hall arena.

Kelly, while in the ring to win, showed rather poor sportsmanship in directing his most deadly attack at the weak spot on Larsen's body.

Larsen is not seriously injured, but it was only by the merest chance that he was not fatally hurt.

There is no scarcity of boxers in Boston and there is no call for dragging a sick man into the ring with little else but his fighting heart.

The fight fans do not want bouts of this kind and this newspaper will not tolerate a repetition of the Larsen-Kelly affair.

NEW JERSEY PUTS O. K. ON 'MIXED' RING BOUTS

By DAMON RUNYON.

New York, April 12.—Mr. Newton A. K. Bugbee, boxing commissioner of New Jersey, a sensible man, makes a sensible ruling.

He says New Jersey draws no "color line," that a colored man has the same right and privileges in that State as a white man.

This, of course, is no more than is guaranteed by the Constitution of the United States.

But little men connected with legalized boxing in some States have arrogated themselves the right to deny colored boys the same privileges as white boys, to say that a colored man shall not meet a white man in the ring.

This is called "drawing the color line," as proceeded quite un-American, unsportsmanlike.

SHOULD NOT PUT BANS UPON NEGROES.

In some sections of the country, where bouts between colored men and white men have been allowed to be calculated to produce such intense feeling as to lead to serious trouble, it would be foolish to countenance those bouts.

The colored people would no more desire them than the whites. The colored people have just as much judicial temperament in these matters as the whites.

But in sections where the so-called "mixed bouts" is viewed dispassionately, there would be no discrimination against the colored boxers.

Mr. Bugbee says Harry Wills can box Jack Dempsey or any other white man in New Jersey if the bout is properly conducted and does not transgress the boxing laws of the State.

It is a sane ruling. Wills has boxed other white men in New Jersey. There is no reason why Wills should not be permitted to box Dempsey in any other State where boxing is legalized for that matter. But the little men who have created the fools of boxing in some of the other States are against the match.

NEW YORK HAS NOT BARRED "MIXED" BOUTS

It appears to be the fixed opinion of those who follow the boxing game in New York that a Dempsey-Wills bout would not be permitted in the State.

The writer has never been able to find a definite reason for this opinion. Governor Smith and the boxing officials have frequently declared there is no "color line" here.

Wills was permitted to box Homer Smith, a white man, last year. He is now matched to meet Bartley Madden, a white man. At the Commonwealth, the Pioneer and other small clubs "mixed" bouts are of weekly occurrence. The only club that has not held a "mixed" bout is the big Madison Square Garden.

All this would seem to refute the idea that a Dempsey-Wills bout can not be held in New York State.

DUNDEE SEEKS THREE RING TITLES

By SID MERCER.

New York, April 12.—Surrounded by his new manager, Charley Johnston, and his former manager, Jimmy Johnston, Johnny Dundee outlined his plans for next Summer.

"I don't care how Charley can make the matches for me," declared the Scot-Wop. "I will fight around with three this next Summer.

"I am going to defend the title I won, of course, and after that I'm going after Benny Leonard again.

Stepping on the scales after his workout, Dundee weighed 125 pounds. It took a long time for him to take off ten more pounds, if hopes to defend his junior lightweight title in the first of his Summer's series of fights.

Then he wants to drop from 115 pounds to 108 and put the featherweight title under his belt. After that he will parade Benny Leonard.

"It is my ambition to own three titles at once," declares Johnny. "That sounds like an impossibility but the weight range is only nine pounds and all that I'll have to do is keep right in the groove.

"I do not intend to confine myself to title fights. Thirty days after I step to the scales I hope to work in a couple of lightweight engagements, and to show Leonard that I am still the foremost challenger for the title.

"I have already disposed of Pal Moran and I am willing to take on Tim Vincent if they will give me a crack at him. I will meet any other lightweight who is being considered for a match with Leonard."

Manager Charley Johnston announced at Dundee will defend his junior lightweight title soon—probably next month and say that if the Vincent-Leonard bout cannot be booked there will top the show with Dundee and either Jack Bernstein or Jack Warner and stage it at the Polo grounds late in May.

Johnny's featherweight program is uncertain. March depends on whether Eugene Criqui comes over from France.

Providence, April 12.—The newly organized Winthrop baseball team of Mount Pleasant will engage the Blessed Sacrament Club of its Providence Amateur League Sunday at Mount Pleasant Park in a game which will officially inaugurate the amateur season.

GREB TO BATTLE NORFOLK ON APRIL 19

Boston will stage the greatest lightweight battle of the year next Saturday night in the Mechanics Building, when Champion Harry Greb and Kid Norfolk meet in a ten-round bout on a decision for the Futsell A. A. Fifteen ring experts are of the opinion that the other fight promoters have lined up for the match for two years. It would attract a capacity crowd in Madison Square Garden and overflow the largest arena in Boston, yet the Futsell Club was fortunate enough to secure the contests.

Two years ago Greb and Norfolk engaged in a ten round no decision bout in Pittsburgh. Every report of that battle emphasized it as the fastest and most furious battle that had been staged in Greb's home town. So both stood up when the then light-heavyweight champion that he cancelled all bouts for more than a month.

Greb is the only white man of importance in ring circles that has failed to take a chance with Norfolk. Tom Gibbons rushed in the orbit of drawing the color line when Norfolk suggested as an opponent.

Mike McTigue would put up a fight think of putting his head under a trip hammer as most the colored men do.

There is no financial inducement that Gene Tunney would accept in the bout.

FRIEDMAN HAS PUNCH TO SHAKEUP TENDLER

Sailor Friedman of Chicago, who swaps blows with Lew Tendler in the feature ten-round bout at the Armory A. A.'s show at Mechanics Building on Tuesday night, is one of the best punchers in the welterweight division. Instead of helping him to secure engagements, Friedman's wallop has handicapped him.

Ask the manager of the average star welterweight to sign his fighter to battle Friedman and he will reply:

"Not that bird. He's too tough. He knocks wagons over with a punch."

Jimmy Looney, Benny Leonard and Charley White felt the crushing sting of Friedman's powerful wallop when they were performing as lightweights. After parading as a lightweight under the name of Friedman has been punishing middleweights.

Eddie Fitzsimmons of New York, who has been matched to box Friedman, was knocked dizzy by Friedman's first bout cost Friedman $1,000 in fines. It made him one of the most unpopular fighters in the game. It is very difficult to match the Chicagoan with anyone because he is such a hard hitting welterweight. Even the lightweight Lefty Lew believes he can defeat Mickey Walker or any other welterweight champion he views Friedman tackling Friedman for a starter.

Benny Bass of Philadelphia, who is made of the same kind of stuff as Friedman of New York will mingle in the semi-final of eight rounders. Charley Donovan of Dorchester and Al Bergeran of New Bedford will mingle eight frames, as will Jackie Williams of Chicago and Spike Hennessey of Waltham.

A match with Norfolk Greb has fought on an average of once every two months for the last three years, but never had any serious contention. Loughran got a decision over the champion, who looked to be so sleepy that he didn't fight for the bout.

AUSTRALIANS LOOM UP IN DAVIS CUP PLAY

By VINCENT RICHARDS.

Australia will make a serious bid for the historic Davis Cup during the coming Summer.

The Australian Lawn Tennis Association recently announced that three veterans and two youngsters would compose the team that will represent the Island Continent.

Pat O'Hara Wood

Norman E. Brooks, Gerald L. Patterson, Pat O'Hara Wood and Fred Kalins have been named as the challenging aggregation. Brooks, Patterson and Wood need no introduction to tennis fans.

They have played here on many occasions and besides adding personal popularity they have proved that they all are first class tennis players.

Little known of the youngsters, Pound Kalins. In his first season out for tennis honors, he went to the semi-final round of the recent Australian championships before losing to Patterson.

This is quite a feat for a boy who had never before participated in tournament play. Whether this youngster can duplicate his performance at Forest Hills, although the age of Gold Mark Anderson, of all others, proves a stumbling block.

KOTSONAROS ON CARD WITH LONDOS

Next Thursday night at the Grand Opera House in another card of wrestling will appear.

George Kotsonaros, Greek title holder, will wrestle Andrew Cossaris, the Spanish champion, in a one-fall event. Kotsy has been suffering from a lame shoulder but has now completely recovered and will be seen to his best form. Cossaris is a clever grappler and will give the Greek a hard battle.

George Kotsonaros

In another feature bout, Jimmy London, the Greek Thor, will look up with Count Nicholas Zarrynoff of Russia for a finish match.

Zarrynoff, who is now a resident of London, has been a big favorite here for a few weeks and runs will be there for a return bout with London. Jimmy won't have any idle time of it when the two rings for the count is one minute below when he gets his fall.

This will be the first appearance of Londos in Boston in over two years and the Greeks will welcome him with open arms. Requests have been coming in from all over New England to see him in action and now that he is coming every indication is that he will be seen.

Still another feature on the card will be Joseph Bonnie, who is styled Kosrow, conqueror of wrestling, and Stanley Stasiak, the Lion of Poland, in a finish contest. In his every appearance the young Pole has showed improvement.

In his match against Ivan Linow on Thursday night he showed the speed and cleverness of a lightweight, but when it comes to a finish he has never had a victory in any stage of the game.

Two preliminaries unannounced will also be on the card and good matching it a night of wrestling.

FORBES' VIEWS ON FINANCE

By B. C. Forbes

(Mr. Forbes will be in Boston from April 21 until April 26. During this time he will fill several speaking engagements and come in close contact with New England problems of business and finance.)

If you want to live long, live much. The oldest active business man I know of is Chauncey M. Depew, chairman of the New York Central lines who is still daily on the job, although he will be ninety the twenty-third of this month. Mr. Depew does not believe he would have lived so long had he not cultivated cheerfulness.

In course of a short talk with him lately I had a most hearty laugh than I have had in many a day. I referred to the Senator's approaching ninetieth birthday.

"I had a little incident last birthday," the Senator started off, his eyes lighting up. "An army of reporters gathered, cameras, the flashlights went popping. After they had gone, a young cub reporter bounced into my office, his hat on his head at a jaunty angle and his whole attitude, oh, so very superior.

"'I have been sent—I don't know why—to write something about your birthday. What is there about April 23 more than any other day that they're making a fuss about your birthday?' he wanted to know.

"I replied that I was eighty-nine and that there weren't so very many of us left at that age.

"'What about it?' the young gentleman demanded, his hat still on his head.

"'Don't you know,' I asked him, 'that on April 23 Shakespeare was born, St. George was born, and I was born?'

"'All in the same year?' asked the cub."

"Are you going to make a speech at the National convention this year?' I asked Senator Watson.

"'Don't know,' he replied. 'But I've had the habit of doing it for more than a generation. At the last convention in Chicago I spoke for an hour, and they told me that I was head better than any of the other speakers. In the unbreezy Westerner squeezed his way up to the platform and told me he had been sitting about two miles from the platform and that I was the only speaker he heard. "How old are you?" he asked.

"'Eighty-six,' I told him.

"He fixed his eyes on me for a moment, then he exploded, 'You are either a d—— liar or you're a miracle.'"

Although the Senator has his grave all built ready for him, with frame and everything else all but in, he doesn't any intention of occupying it for a long, long time.

The Dawes report has fulfilled the highest expectations of financial America. There is particular gratification over the fact that its many recommendations were adopted unanimously. It is not expected that Germany will agree to the proposed plan until the Reparations Commission makes some definite limit to the amount Germany will have to pay in the long run. It is believed by many that, if this be done, Germany will come to terms and get down to business.

It is hinted in responsible circles that immediately an agreement is reached, billions of German money now in hiding throughout the world will flow back to the Fatherland and start things humming there at a rate never before known.

Meanwhile, however, American financial leaders are moving along conservatively, awaiting the outcome of the impending negotiations between Allies and Germany over the report. Yet underlying sentiment in high places has been appreciably strengthened.

STUDEBAKER IS AT FRESH LOW FOR YEAR

Foreclosed brakes couldn't stop them.

Active issues in the week-end New York stock market slipped off after making a firm week-end start that was added by covering by "shorts" who found no encouraging items made by the Dawes report.

Studebaker was off over 5 points to a low for 1924. Other issues at new lows for the year were Chandler, Cuba Cane Sugar pfd., Seneca and New York Yellow Cab.

In the bond market French government issues and municipals lifted to highs for the year. These included French 8s and the Bordeaux, Lyons, Seine and Paris-Lyons-Mediterranean. Bolivia 8s set a fresh year's high. Declines came in Wilson & Co. issues.

MARKET VIEWS OF BROKERS IN BOSTON

Boston brokers' market views for the week follow:

In a word, we see no ground for major depression, but rather the basis for confidence in a business structure inherently robust. — TUCKER, ANTHONY & CO.

There is little real public interest in the market although some authorities are inclined to believe that the Dawes plan will have a bullish effect. If the short interest is as large as painted, then the situation should be shaping up for the mob scene.— HUNT, ELLIS & CO.

A great deal is said of the unwieldy short interest in the market. Undoubtedly this is fairly large, though we believe rather exaggerated, and may from time to time bring about temporary rallies.— HAYDEN, STONE & CO.

With the Dawes report published, and an easier situation down in Washington, there is much that is constructive in the situation, which will have its due weight and effect later on. The action of the bond market, moreover, should serve as a warning to the bears.—SCHIRMER, ATHERTON & CO.

WIDOW SENT CASH FOR LANG'S DIVORCE

Girl Kills Her Child, Then Goes to Work

HELD PRISONER BY WOMAN, BOY SAYS

DOUGLAS POLLOCK

Newton boy's father says woman neighbor dragged the child through her yard and held him prisoner for several hours. She is said to have claimed that the boy jumped through her hedge, destroying it. $5,000 damages are asked.

CHARGES BOY OF 7 WAS HELD CAPTIVE

Suit for $5,000 has been entered in the Middlesex Court against Mrs. Mary C. Morse, of No. 49 Brookside road, West Newton, by Douglas Pollock, a minor, through his father, S. N. Pollock, of No. 24 Wiswall street, West Newton.

It is charged that Mrs. Morse dragged the seven-year-old boy through her yard, and held him in her home for several hours against his will.

So badly was the boy frightened by her threats, Mr. Pollock alleges, that he did not sleep for several nights, and his health has been seriously undermined. Threats by Mrs. Morse to have the child arrested, it is charged, have so intimidated him that he has not dared to venture from his home without his parents.

The incident is alleged to have occurred on February 7, 1924. Mrs. Morse, is represented as claiming that she caught young Morse and another boy jumping through a hedge in front of her home, and that the hedge, valued at $120, was destroyed.

Counsel for Mr. Pollock is John F. Hurley of No. 319 Tremont building. Mrs. Morse is represented by H. D. Cabot of No. 15 Congress street.

The firm is the Electrical Contracts Corporation with headquarters at 50 Sudbury street. The incorporators are Hervey W. King of Milton; William S. Cook of Cambridge; Arthur F. Johnson of Boston and Wilford L. Sears of Norfolk. The attorneys of the new corporation are Charles M. Mason of New York; C. J. Hamilton of Plainfield, N. J., and Albert Tilden of Plainfield.

HUGHES, WEEKS AND WINSLOW CELEBRATE

Washington, April 12 (C.N.S.)—Secretary of State Charles Evans Hughes, Secretary of War John W. Weeks and Representative Samuel E. Winslow, of Massachusetts, celebrated their birthdays jointly yesterday by dining together at a luncheon given the three at the Army and Navy Club was attended by Washington's official and social set.

Representative and Mrs. Winslow were hosts at a similar party last year when President and Mrs. Harding were present.

ELLIOTT PLEADS FOR RATE SECTIONS

Washington, April 12.—Railroad representatives continued today before the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee their argument against repeal of the rate sections of the Transportation Act. Howard Elliott, chairman of the board of the Northern Pacific, predicted such action would shake the confidence of the investing public and prove detrimental to shippers and employes alike.

SINCLAIR FILES DEMURRER ON CONTEMPT

Washington, April 12.—The authority of the Senate to ask him questions which resulted in contempt proceedings against him, was attacked by Harry F. Sinclair today in a demurrer filed here in answer to his contempt indictment.

The demurrer followed in the main the legal contentions advanced by the Sinclair lawyers when the oil magnate and lessee of Teapot Dome last appeared before the Senate Oil Committee and refused to reply to a long string of questions on the ground that the investigators were without authority and that his evidence should be reserved for the courts.

Sinclair pleaded not guilty to the contempt charge immediately after the indictment was returned two weeks ago. The proceedings are entirely separate from the Grand Jury investigation of the naval oil leasing program itself, which will begin before another Grand Jury here next week.

The fifteen paragraphs of the demurrer cover a wide range of objections, even challenging on technical legal grounds the present organization of the Senate itself, which it is declared is not "in accordance with the provisions of the constitution and laws of the United States."

No details of this counter attack, but presumably the objection is based on the failure of the Senate at this session to elect a president pro tem. Senate leaders have taken the position that no such election is necessary and that President Cummins automatically holds over from the last session until a successor is chosen.

Hearing on the demurrer and an accompanying motion to quash the indictment probably will take place April 25.

CHARITY WORKERS THANK THE MAYOR

In a letter received by Mayor Curley today from representatives of the private societies which have been provided the use of the Baldwin School for temporary quarters during the construction of their new charity building, appreciation of the concession granted them was expressed. It was signed by William H. Pear, for the Boston Provident Association; Hazel Newton, for the Co-Operative Workmen; Stockton Raymond, for the Family Welfare Society of Boston; Franklin P. Daly, for the Industrial Aid Society, and James A. McMurry, for the Society of St. Vincent De Paul.

BABY'S BODY FOUND IN BURNING PAPERS

Police of Wintrop are seeking the parenty of a baby boy whose body was found today in a burning pile of papers in a vacant field near the Battery station of the Narrow Gauge at Winthrop. Thomas Sheerin was on his way to the station when he noticed a bulky package and some loose papers burning in the field. He went over to stamp out the flames and discovered the body.

2 BOYS NEAR DEATH; HIT BY AUTOS

Francis Kane, 4, and James Smith, 5, Victims, on Danger List

Automobiles took a toll of two little boys in accidents on city streets today. Both are on the danger list.

Francis Kane, four years old, was struck on Dartmouth street railroad bridge, near the Back Bay station, by a truck owned by the Bacon Steam Laundry and operated by James J. Hosley of No. 25 Kennard street, Cambridge.

He has concussion of the brain and a lacerated upper lip. Hosley picked him up and took him to the City Hospital. Police found difficulty in finding his parents for notification and, to help, published a description of his clothing.

He was dressed in a mixed gray suit and hat, a brown overcoat and black shoes and stockings, and is believed to live on Columbus avenue, South End. His name was sewed in the lining of his coat.

A touring car owned and operated by Charles P. Kendall of Pride's Crossing, dealt multiple injuries to James Smith, five, at Friend and Causeway streets. The boy lives at No. 202 Friend street. He was taken to the Haymarket Relief station in Kendall's car.

TWO COUPLES ON ROAD TO ALTAR

Youth was crowded into the background by middle age today at the Marriage Intention Bureau at City Hall.

Mary Teresa Colbert, 38 years old, a school teacher of No. 59 Ellery street, Cambridge, filed marriage intentions to marry James O'Leary, 50 years old, a carpenter of No. 88 King street, Dorchester. O'Leary has been three times married and three times widowed. Both were born at Harbor Grace, Newfoundland.

Frank C. Commens, 54 years old, of No. 25 Elm avenue, Wollaston, a laundry owner and a widower, filed intentions to marry Dr. Margaret S. Brown, 38 years old, of No. 22 Blagdon street, Back Bay.

MAINE LAWYER GONE SINCE LAST JANUARY

Houlton, Me., April 12.—The disappearance early last January of Attorney Beecher Putnam, former state senator, member of the 1916 electoral college, and prominent Maine politician, has just become known.

At that time Putnam packed two suit cases, withdrew several hundred dollars from the bank and told the waitress at the hotel where he usually took his meals that he was going on a short trip of a few days. He has not been heard from since.

It was first thought he had gone to St. Petersburg, Fla., to visit a brother, Dr. H. B. Putnam, but the brother has revealed that he has not heard from him. A country-wide search has been started.

OPERATE NEXT WEEK ON SEN COUZENS

Washington, April 12.—Physicians attending Senator Couzens of Michigan decided today to operate on him early next week.

The following statement was issued by Drs. Hugo A. Freund of Detroit, after a consultation: "Mr. Couzens is just recovering from an acute gall bladder attack. He is resting much easier today and has no temperature. He is being prepared for the operation, which will probably take place early in its week."

CHINESE PIRATES ATTACK STEAMER

Hong Kong, April 12 (A.P.).—A large number of Chinese passengers aboard the steamer Tai Lee, bound from Kongmoon for Hong Kong, were fired on and robbed in the Canton River Delta, in the first piratical attack since promulgation of the new anti-piratical regulations.

Several passengers were wounded. Discouraged by resistance met, the pirates leaped overboard and swam for shore, but not, however, before three of them had been killed. Many passengers were robbed.

Woman Takes Whistle of Cop as Tribute to Car; Speeds Off

Mrs. Virginia J. Hayden, twenty-five, of No. 58 Main street, Concord, drives such a flashy, green automobile that she is accustomed to hear people give audible evidence of surprise as she flits by.

Mrs. Hayden heard Patrolman George E. Moore of Arlington whistle after her when she drove off while the officer was in the midst of recording her name and address for police court purposes, but she thought the policeman was just surprised at her nifty outfit. The officer wasn't surprised. He was mad.

He had chased the woman two miles in a commandeered car after she speeded through Arlington.

In East Cambridge Court she was fined $10 for speeding and paid $10 costs in connection with the charge of refusing to stop.

"I heard the officer whistle, certainly," said Mrs. Hayden. "But I'm used to hearing people whistle when I drive by so I didn't bother stopping."

DEKAY FACES TRIAL AFTER 13 YEARS

Providence, April 12.—After a lapse of eleven years John Wesley DeKay, charged with being one of three men who looted the Atlantic National Bank of $200,000, will likely be brought to this country and tried in the United States Court here.

Since the indictment was returned against DeKay in 1913, the banker has lived in Europe, and word has been received that he is under arrest in London on an indictment warrant of October, 1922, based on the old indictment.

Two of DeKay's former associates, his brother, Henry E. DeKay, and Edward P. Moisalf, the latter a former president of the Atlantic National Bank, have long since been tried and convicted for their part in the bank looting.

It is alleged that the three men misappropriated the funds of the bank and at the trial of the former president of the institution, John Wesley DeKay was referred to as the "brains" of the entire plot, his brother and Moisalf being referred to as merely pawns.

English authorities have refused to release DeKay on bail and steps are under way to secure his extradition to this country. Most of the time since he fled from the United States the banker has been living in Switzerland and France. He was arrested a few hours after he arrived in England.

ADMITS SHE SENT CASH TO RENO

41-Year-Old Dorchester Widow Answers Wife in $50,000 Love Theft Suit

Loans wired to Reno, Nevada, to Gerhard Lang of Jamaica Plain, who was there seeking a divorce from his young wife, were admitted today by Mrs. Edna E. Galbraith, forty-one year old Dorchester widow.

Mrs. Galbraith is defendant in a suit for $50,000 for alienation of affections brought by Mrs. Catherine Lang, twenty-nine years old.

In papers filed today in Suffolk Superior Court, she replied, under compulsion of the court, to nine interrogatories put by Mrs. Lang.

Her exact age was one of the things she had to tell. She was originally confronted with eighty-two interrogatories and refused to answer twenty-seven of them, unless ordered to do so.

Gerhard Lang first came to my house at No. 712 Dudley street to deliver a package," she states. "After that he made many social calls at my house. In August, 1923, I bought him tickets to Reno, using his money. Later, at his request, I wired him loans of $100 and $25."

Mrs. Galbraith asserts that although she met Lang in January of last year, she did not learn he was married until June 7, when she met Mrs. Lang. She admits that after that date Lang lodged at her home.

Lang was brought back from Reno by police and charged with misconduct with Mrs. Galbraith. He pleaded guilty and both were convicted on Roxbury Court, but Mrs. Galbraith was later acquitted in Superior Court.

Mrs. Lang has three children and is working to support them. She declares she stayed to help her husband get his education he desired to practice law.

According to Mrs. Galbraith's story, Lang wooed her ardently and showered other things presented her with handsome embroidery which he himself sewed. She made a complete denial in answer to questions about frequent visits to Lang at his place of employment, automobile rides and trips to Portland and New York.

230 MILLIONS CUT IN TAXES, SMOOT SAYS

Washington, April 12.—The revenue bill as framed by the Senate finance committee has cut taxes $331,988,444 below the Treasury surplus available for reduction, Chairman Smoot estimated today in the committee's report on the bill presented formally to the Senate.

This "conservative" estimate for the fiscal year will be wiped out, Mr. Smoot predicted, by an improvement in business conditions expected to result from placing "those taxes upon an economically sound basis."

MINORITY REPORT.

A minority report, carrying the views of the Democratic members of the committee, will be presented tomorrow.

The committee bill provides for a reduction in annual revenue comparison with the present law of $434,720,000, as against an estimated cut of $446,000,000 under the measure as it passed the House.

The provision for a 25 per cent reduction in the income taxes of 1923 payable this year, will save taxpayers $227,000,000, the report estimates. Mr. Smoot detailed the many changes made in the committee's administrative provisions as well as in the tax rate schedule.

10 P. C. TAX ON MAH JONG.

Provision for increasing revenue collections under the present law are made in only three instances, Smoot said, the new taxes on radio and Mah Jong sets and a change in the corporation tax. A 10 per cent tax on Mah Jong would bring in $1,000,000 annually, it is estimated.

Increasing the corporation tax of 12½ per cent. to 14 per cent. would bring in $104,000,000 additional revenue, the report held, while elimination of the special corporation stock tax would cut off $85,000,000. The change would decrease the cost of collection of these taxes, it was said, and make a "more equitable distribution of the burden of taxation."

The net reduction in normal taxes under the committee bill would amount to $200,000,000. The House bill would have provided for a $130,000,000 slash in normal taxes and for only $150,000,000 in surtaxes.

When Vice-President J. E. Dalrymple of the Canadian National Railroad arrived at the North Station this morning he was ready to receive news of importance. So keen is he that Mr. Dalrymple had installed on the observation car on all longdistance trains of the Canadian National.

The latest instruments, early equipped with loud speakers, but receivers are entertained with concerts and addresses and finding out what the world's news as they are whisked at rapid speed over the vast expanse of the Dominion.

The radio is a marvelous, with four tubes for reception and three stages of power amplification. There is a loop antenna, which runs around the roof of the car.

There are two dry cell batteries and one storage battery, the former for the filament from the lighting system in the car.

The radio set has been constructed and installed by the Canadian National Railways Communications Department, and for nearly a year, under the direction of Mr. Hoare, for the Montreal headquarters of the railroad, addresses and other official addresses of the staff of the road.

There are two broadcasting stations, one at Ottawa and the other at Winnipeg, Man.

The instrument on the "Canada" is in charge of J. Pollette, the steward, who finds no difficulty in picking up all messages while the locomotive is traveling at fifty miles an hour.

SUDDEN FIT OF HATRED FOR BABY

Hurls Two-Day-Old Infant Out of Window and Confesses to Police

Lawrence, April 12.—An eighteen-year-old mother tossed her two-day-old baby boy on a concrete walk in the rear of a Melvin street house, fracturing its skull and killing it—then went to work in the Uswoco Mills.

"There wasn't much life in it, anyway," she told the police without emotion today at the Lawrence Municipal Hospital, where she is under arrest, charged with infanticide.

The young mother is Mary Zaleski, a weaver. The finding of the infant's body was the first intimation that she had become a mother.

ARRESTED AT HOME.

Today at the hospital, in a rambling statement, she said she went home from work Wednesday night. Her baby was born that night. She had no medical attention.

Thursday morning, alone, away often, Friday morning she arose, took the infant and tossed it on the concrete walk in the rear of the home of H. K. Linsmore, No. 5 Melvin street. Then she went to work.

She first says, according to the police, was a confession that she had injured the baby out of a window. Police later denied that.

He notified the police and they removed the body to an undertaker's. Medical Examiner Victor A. Reed ordered it and declared death was due to a fractured skull.

POLICE PUZZLED.

Police investigation led to the Zaleski girl's home, No. 95 Margin street. They found her there ill, injured from a window, when obsessed by a sudden hatred for her baby.

Because of her weakened condition, the police did not question her closely. They will endeavor to learn the name of the child's father when the girl is sufficiently recovered to talk.

She was placed under arrest by Inspectors Timothy J. O'Brien and Michael Murphy. She has been employed as a weaver in the Uswoco Mills.

Woonsocket, April 12.—While the parents of Stephen Sak, aged eighteen, of No. 193 River street were at church today the boy was found suspended from a rope in the cellar of his home. The youth ended his life because he could not secure employment.

When the mother went to the cellar today she discovered the body. The boy had fastened the rope of clothesline to a rafter and, tying a noose around one end, placed it around his neck and then stepped off the box. He had been dead about twelve hours.

Mrs. M. S. of No. 45 Prospect St., Auburn, R. I., Wins $5 Award for Economical, Nourishing Menu

Mrs. M. S. of No. 45 Prospect street, Auburn, R. I., wins the $5 award for an economical, nourishing menu. Here it is:

BREAKFAST

Prunes, fried rice with maple syrup, bread and coffee. Costs 25c.

LUNCH

Codfish cakes with tomato sauce, corn muffins, home made ginger cookies and tea. Costs 35c.

DINNER

Ham and scalloped potatoes en casserole, hot biscuits, stewed tomatoes, bumble puppies and coffee. Costs 80c.

Here are some of Mrs. S.'s recipes:

FRIED RICE AND MAPLE SYRUP

Take 1½ cups of rice, 1 tea. salt well. Cook rice slowly until done, pack into bread pan; when ready to use, cut in slices three quarters of an inch thick. Have an egg well beaten and dip the rice in and fry in part butter and lard until a golden brown.

CODFISH CAKES

Soak fish one hour in cold water. Add the potatoes and boil; when done, add a little pepper and butter; make in cakes and fry. Heat tomatoes and rub through fine sieve and take dessert spoon of butter, dessert spoon of flour, rub together to thicken sauce. Pour over cakes, garnish platter with parsley.

BUMBLE PUPPIES

One egg beaten, 1 cup of molasses, 5 dessert spoons of lard, 1½ cups of flour, salt to taste. 1 teaspoon of ginger and cinnamon; last ½ cup of hot water with an even teaspoon of soda is dissolved in it. Bake in oval gem pans in a hot oven.

Among many other excellent menus are the following two that I feel deserve honorable mention. One is from Mrs. W. Hallett-Du No. 525 Cabot street, Beverly. Mrs. Hallett-Du has two children, and as they are too small to have a "real" dinner at night with the family, she plans a separate menu each day for the youngsters. Here is her well balanced suggestion for one day's meals for children from 2 to 5:

Breakfast, 20c—Orange juice, oatmeal cereal, milk, toast.

Dinner, 35c—Lettuce soup (beef consomme with alphabet noodles, cooked egg, baked potato, canned tomato, lemon jello, milk.

Supper, 15c—Milk, toast, apple sauce, milk.

"The soup is made from the bones from a roast of either beef or lamb that we have had the day before," she says. "The tomatoes are either left over or I am planning to use the rest for lunch that night. In a recipe of lemon jello there is always enough for two days and sometimes three."

ANOTHER MENU

Another excellent menu comes from Mrs. W. Lovett, No. 49 Devens street, Greenfield. It is:

Breakfast—oatmeal, light omelet, toast, coffee. Cost 30c.

Lunch—Veal stew with vegetables, corn bread. Costs 25c.

Dinner—Sausage, mashed potatoes, eggless chocolate pudding, with top milk. Costs 80c.

LIGHT OMELET

For each egg allow ¼ teaspoon of salt, a dust of pepper, 1 tablespoon of liquid (milk, cream, stock, tomatoes, or even water). Break whites and yolks separately, beating each until very light.

Add liquid and seasonings to yolks, fold the yolks into the whites, stirring as little as possible. Have the omelet pan hot, melt in it 1 teaspoon of butter, turn in the omelet and cook over a slow fire until well browned on the bottom, then set in the oven until the top is set. Fold carefully, not to break crust, and turn on to a hot dish.

Serve at once. This omelet is delicious made with ham or green peas. The ham may be folded in or mixed through the whole egg.

"I find this is a very economical way of using eggs," she says. "Just now, especially, when strictly fresh eggs can be had at 35c a dozen."

An omelet of eggs serving four persons is about 20c.

"My veal stew with vegetables I made from the remains of veal pot roast which I served Sunday with hot dumplings.

The dumpling recipe is:

DUMPLINGS

One pint of flour, 2 teaspoons of baking powder, ½ teaspoon of salt. Milk enough to moisten the flour. Drop from a teaspoon into the hot soup which I thicken with 2 tablespoons of flour before putting the dumplings in.

"I cook the dumplings for about fifteen minutes and they always come out light and fluffy."

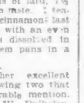
A WIFE'S MEDITATIONS

By HELEN ROWLAND

BACHELORS are born, not made; and no matter how often a "born bachelor" may go through the wedding ceremony, he is a bachelor—at heart!



If a man lives and dies with his bachelor's buttons on, it is not because he is "never intended to marry." but because Nature never intended him to marry.

Helen Rowland.

So man ever marries intentionally!

It is not because he is filled with caution and cowardice that a man is filled with his inactive, irresistible spirit of Romance that can never be caught and tamed by a woman.

* * *

It is not because he never loved some woman to distraction that he loved so many women a little.

* * *

It is not because "the right woman never came his way" but because when she did he was always "on the way" to call on the wrong woman.

* * *

Not because he dreaded the storms and struggles of married life—but because he dreaded the dead calm of domesticity.

* * *

Not because he waited too long for the Ideal Love—but because he began looking for it too early—and too often.

* * *

Not because he never met the kind of woman he could live with—but because he never met a woman he could NOT live without.

Not because no woman ever tried to get him—but because so many women tried to get him, that it spoiled all the fun of the love-chase.

* * *

Not because he never had an impulse to TIE himself to a woman for life—but because he never had the heart to disentangle himself from all the other women in his life.

* * *

That is what keeps a man a bachelor—not his inability to fall in love, but his marvelous ability in catching his balance and crawling OUT of it—just in time.

* * *

Not his great dogged "will-power" he is imagines—but his little cat-like wonty nerve.

Marriage is a matter of chance for about half the unmarried ladies; but love requires skill, luck, dexterity, eternal vigilance—and natural GENIUS!

WHO SAID IT AND WHERE

"Our todays and yesterdays are the blocks with which we build."

Longfellow uses these words in "The Builders" in recommending that we make proper use of time.

"Grief is a tattered tent where through God's light doth shine."

Grief often opens our eyes to truths, as Lucy Larcom reminds us in "Hints."

Woman's Privilege

DRAWN BY NELL BRINKLEY

© 1926 by Int'l Feature Service, Inc.

I THINK if a woman never changed her mind, and stuck to what she first said, refused to ever change boulders in the stream, but stood on the same one, willy-nilly, rain or shine, 'til doomsday. Life would have a good deal of the pepper taken out of it—I'm thinking, and a heap of men in the world would sit down by the roadside and yawn for that the world had suddenly—"my gosh" —gone so slack!

As it is, boys, it's a lovely, lively place. Something stirring all of the time, blasted hopes lifted, down one minute and up the next, a changeable breeze, it's true—but always a breeze for your little white sails!

Even Love alone—see how he profits by the ofttn quality of mind that was graciously given to Eve. And if every time Eve said "no"—when an earnest young man asked her would she come to the shelter of the warm heart under the coat on his breast—she stuck by that—and never later whispered in a fluttering little voice—"ye-s-e-s"; how few gay little bridal ships would come dipping their colors into harbor, for the betterment of the whole wide world that looks on!

FADS OF FASHION

By MILDRED ASH

A BLAZING TRAIL is trodden by those French women who are wearing gaily-colored, fancy shoes for daytime wear at the fashionable resorts. These fancy shoes are of bright green, red or blue kid, with novelty cut-outs and strappings, or they have the colored leather vamps with quarters and ankle strap of black patent leather, which has enameled flowers painted on it. These brilliant shoes lend the note of color to an all-white costume, which is worn with a hat and purse that carry out the colorings of the shoes.

In Pleasant Bondage is she who wears the "new slave" bracelet from which hangs a tiny vanity bag, for kerchief, rouge, powder and coin purse. Tiny link chains thread the drawstring bag and connect it with the long links which, fitting tightly over the wrist, appear, to form a bracelet instead of a purse handle.

Modes and Motifs. Fashion's motive seems to be to give an infinite variety of novelty gloves—different from any ever worn before. A tan fabric glove has a dark brown turn-back cuff, which is held at each side with a beaded motif from which is suspended a silk tassel.

Counting Her Buttons actually requires skill these days, for every well-dressed woman is literally covered with buttons—from head to foot. Everywhere, from athletic field to ballroom, at all times, from morning semi-sport costume to the evening gown, buttons seem to be the most modish trimming.

Decidedly Oriental in design and colorings, the new Spring silks loudly proclaim the Chinese influence. Printed in dark myriads of fantastic patterns, these exquisite fabrics stress the vivid shades of jade green, lacquer red, flaming yellow and also rich old ivory.

Deliberately Two-Faced is the silken scarf that is attached to the shoulder with a pin, with street dress it is intended to accompany. This smart stole enlivens the otherwise sedate frock by being faced in the deepest shade of green, blue, red or yellow.

Extremely well-heeled are bewitching evening slippers with decorated heels. One pair of white satin dancing slippers have green heels, while still another pair—also of white satin—have black heels, studded with sparkling rhinestones.

Jade Isn't at all jaded, but continues to be as fashionable as ever. An attractive necklace of genuine jade beads, with five carved jade pendants of different shapes and sizes, is beaded with carved carnelian beads. The chain extending below the waist.

Bridal Veils and Trousseau Hats

By Priscilla Price

There are many weddings coming after Easter. And the bride's veil is an important item. The real lace veil is very handsome. It is generally worn slightly covering the back hair, tiny bands of orange blossoms coming from the back of head to sides of the forehead, holding in place soft waves. It can also be worn in headdress style. With a buckle effect of pearls high at the front, and a row of pearls rimming the side and holding the lace close to forehead in cap style.

A very young girl would look lovely with a tulle veil in cap style. Orange blossoms outlining the tiny tucks of the cap. They should be sewed across the forehead and down over the ears, holding the cap snugly to the nape of the neck. Another way to wear a veil is to buy two cocardes of orange blossoms and yards of tulle. Tuck it across the head and let each circle of blossoms hold it down close over the ears.

The effect of beautiful simplicity results from a tulle veil fastened to a wide band of tulle that is draped closely around the head, a thin layer partly shading the eyes. Another fold is worn under the chin and a wreath of orange blossoms around the head over the two. Now-a-days the tulle veil worn pleated high in the back is absolutely passe. Of course some people like the old fashioned custom of wearing a wedding veil over the face on the way to the altar, throwing it back after the ceremony. It is quite charming.

For an early May wedding the bride-to-be is going to wear a Juliet cap of orange blossoms. The veil of tulle is fulled on to the centre back. Her dress will be a simple gown of ivory satin with long tight sleeves. Being an evening wedding, the bridesmaids, in place of hats, will wear little Juliet caps of gold lace.

There are many types of hats for the trousseau. The going-away hat should be small and matching in color the cloak or suit that is worn. Every bride wants one or more sport hats, one felt and one Bangkok. These are stylish and a good choice. For afternoon wear she should have a dressy hat of fine horsehair or lace combined with tulle. Black is always good, as it can be worn with light or dark clothes. However, there are many lovely hats in pastel colors to be worn with dainty Summer dresses that make up the trousseau of the Spring bride.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Powdered finely and rubber gently over the walls with a clean, soft duster or an old muslin curtain starch will remove all stains.

If a little mixed starch is added to the last rinsing water the clothes will not only iron better but will have a glossy finish. This of course, only refers to white clothes that have been boiled.

GREEN IS SOOTHING AND COOL

A BEDROOM done in soft greens is like a breath of outdoors.

OLD FURNITURE can be scraped and sandpapered. Then apply a thin coat of ivory-white paint. Artists do this on canvas because color eventually works through and spoils the other shades.

SELECT your rug and hangings. Then get green paint to tone with them. Apple green is pretty. Use a slightly darker shade for the woodwork. Pale green walls, neutral, or cream, go with this color scheme. A black floor, with black rugs, is good. Or, plain with a plain taupe rug.

CRETONNE in English chintz pattern, lovely roses on a cream ground, green leaves and touches of lavender, is 58 cents a yard. Use lavender, or rose, tie-backs.

LAVENDER lamp bases on the dressing table may be had for $2 each. Line shades with lavender, covering with pale pink georgette. French flowers to trim are 15 cents a cluster.

BEDSPREAD—material, silk-and-linen, is $2.00 a yard. 40 inches wide. Lavender, or pink, with light tan stripes. Beautiful. Cheaper than ready-made.

A HEART-SHAPED pillow, small, is about $1.50. Place a pink one between your bed pillows, cover with sheer white, and make pretty rosette of 3-inched lavender and yellow ribbon. 22 and 29 cents a yard.

FOR GLASS CURTAINS get tan theatrical gauze, yard wide, 37½ cents. 2 yards wide, 75 cents. Rose or blue would look well in adjoining room. 50 cents. Yard wide.

VOILE curtaining is 1 yard wide. Has double-ruffle frill at edge. 98 cents yard. Plain, 85 cents. Gold, blue, rose, green. The cream would look well in a green room. Dainty. Wears and washes well.

A WINDOW BOX of tan, gray or natural wicker is 30 inches long. $4.95. Well made, strong legs. Has removable galvanized lining. Put ivy and rose colored geraniums, or ferns, in it.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. F. X MAHONEY, Boston Health Commissioner.

THE newspapers, the magazines, the billboards—all are filled with messages telling about the proper care of the skin—the proper soaps and creams to use, etc.

It is surprising, however, the number of persons who utterly neglect the care of their skin.

Dr. Mahoney

Many persons unthinkingly abuse or neglect the surface of their bodies by using soap that is utterly unsuited to them. Skins differ. Some contain much more oil than others.

If your skin is dry—if no oil is secreted—a strong alkaline soap is bad for it. You should experiment with soaps until you find one that suits you. Remember also, that soap that meets your needs with one kind of water may be entirely different when another water is used.

There are certain persons who at this season of the year lay their plans for accumulating a thick coat of sunburn and tan at the earliest possible moment.

A tanned skin looks healthy, but a raw, inflamed sunburned skin does not add to the appearance while at the same time the pain and inconvenience it causes are considerable.

Sunlight contains light rays and heat rays. In addition, it contains chemical rays which have the property of searing and irritating the skin.

There are any number of simple creams that will keep the skin clean and protect it. Give a little thought and care to your skin and see if you don't look and feel better as a result.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED.

I know there must be some way to check this disease. Nose and throat fallen hair and dandruff appealing to you. The four doctors I have given me have each given me different treatments. Y. A. M.

I would advise you to have your blood examined first. If that is all right, I would advise you to go to a skin specialist who has made a special study of skin infection and treatment.

Please explain what foods make one fat and strong. E. J. S. Cambridge.

Fats and fatty foods, plenty of milk, bread and starchy foods are favorite builders.

My wife has tuberculosis and has been in a sanatorium for five months now. She took six hemorrhages three weeks ago. Has a patient a better chance to get better when they take them, than when they don't? The doctor said nine months would do her as well as any but one. but thinks that these hemorrhages put her back as far as ever again. A. F. S. Somerville.

Hemorrhages are bad signs and the doctor's statement was correct.

YOUR BEAUTY

SPEND TEN MINUTES A DAY TO DEVELOP REALLY LOVELY ARMS

By Maria Jeritza

Famous Prima Donna of the Metropolitan Opera Company and One of the Most Beautiful Women of the Day

SLIM shoulders and shapely, gracefully-curved arms are indispensable to the woman who prides her beauty.

There are a thousand occasions—at the theatre, at the opera, at a dinner party, for instance—when the grace and loveliness of a woman's figure are judged by the upper portion of her body as it emerges from her frock.

And at any time, upon all occasions, her appearance is infinitely enhanced by graceful lines of her chin, neck, shoulders and arms.

Sleeves of to-day's style do not even half conceal the curves of shoulders and arms, and neither scrawny arms nor flabby overfat ones can escape instant detection.

It is an excellent plan to buy a soft rubber ball—the kind you used to play with when you were a little girl. Practice for a few moments each morning, just before your bath, bouncing and catching it. This simple pastime of your childhood days will tend to keep your arms limber, supple and symmetrical.

Do you sleep at night with your arms in a stiff, cramped position, doubled up under your head or pillow? If so, you probably wonder why you sometimes awaken with pains in your arms and shoulders not unlike rheumatism. Also, you may wonder why your upper arms are flabby and fat or else scrawny.

Learn to sleep always with your arms at your side in a natural uncramped position. In this way you will sleep better, awake more rested and will in time marvel at the improved appearance of your arms.

For perfect symmetry of the arms and shoulders is impossible where during sleeping hours they are forced into a cramped position that seriously interferes with the free circulation of blood.

A wall exerciser is another good means of reducing the size of the arms through burning up excess fat by vigorous exercise. This appliance can be acquired at little cost and attached to the wall where it will not be in your way.

We spend many hours patiently planning and possibly fashioning a costume that is to be just as lovely as pocket-book and taste will permit. Why not spend a few moments each day in securing bodily symmetry, without which any costume must needs be a failure from the beauty point of view.

You cannot make a better investment of half an hour each morning than by spending ten minutes at vigorous exercise before your open window and the next twenty in a quick tub bath of warm or cool soap and water followed by a rinse in clean cool water, a quick rub and a still more brief alcohol rub.

This thirty minutes of enjoyable exercise will, if persisted in month after month, year after year, add 50 per cent. at a moderate estimate, to your healthful enjoyment of life. And it will add immeasurably to your grace, symmetry and beauty. Your clothes will appear twice as lovely because they are worn over a lovely and graceful body.

Why not begin today this simple regimen of exercise and baths, which will mean for you, health, grace and beauty?

Make use of this exercise I shall describe from day to day, starting with today's suggestion, to beauty of your arms.

PRISCILLA PRICE on Interior Decorating Tells About A GREEN BEDROOM

Green is a cool, soothing color. It is particularly suitable for the Summer bedroom, or for use in doing over rooms that have become dull and dingy.

A little friend of mine, whose husband is still in college, has just brightened up her living room with some new draperies. She found a pretty figured cretonne, a cream ground with lavender flowers and tiny pink buds in it. This she bound with inch bands of green muslin. She put green silk tassels on her window shades and on her pull cords. With what was left of the cretonne she covered the cushion of her big wicker chair, finishing the edges with a narrow ruffle of the green muslin. She put away the orange lustre vase which had been on her table all Winter, and in its place I noticed a lovely green bowl. In it were a few artificial purple asters. All this cost only a few dollars. And the room is as pretty and fresh looking as if hubby were making a lot of money, instead of economizing, so he could continue his studies.

Tim just going to do a green bedroom. This is what I'd like: First, I'd paint the floor black. The woodwork would be reeda green, the walls a pale cream. This same cream I'd use on the ceiling, instead of white. I don't care for white ceilings, they look so cold and hard looking. Some painters will tell you they can't paint a ceiling anything but white. But they can, easily, if you insist. The only colored ceiling I haven't liked was a pink one. My, how dreadful it was! I could hardly endure it until the painter came and changed it to a lovely pale blue.

For this green bedroom I'd want either ivory-white furniture, rubbed at the corners with apple green, and a little green decoration on the wooden knobs. Or, I'd have apple-green furniture, rubbing the drawer knobs with gilt, and then a darker green, to get high-lights.

The ivory-white bed could have a green satin cover, under sheer white. Or, the green bed could have a black satine cover, ornamented with apple-green wool flat flowers in shades of rose, lavender and yellow.

For glass curtains, I would dye cheesecloth a pale green. The over draperies could be of pale green satine, using a twenty-inch valance on a deeply curved rod. This valance should have a three or four-inch ruffle and a two-inch heading above the raceway. Straight stripe of the satine would hang on rings from the rod, so that they could easily be drawn at night. Or, use cream cheesecloth glass curtains and pale pink hangings. Cream cretonne with pink and lavender flowers would also be very pretty. This sounds like a lot of green, doesn't it? But it isn't, for the black floor is a wonderful background, and calls for much color. Lavender and purple rugs could be used in front of the dressing table and bed.

LIMITING FRIENDSHIP

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

D At a party, I met a young man, who took a liking to me. He has taken a girl friend of mine out with him and lately has taken no one else but her. Since then my girl friend of mine has told me very cool. Among my other friends, a peasant girl has been said about my taking his girl friend away. Would you advise me to step right out with him? We have no thoughts of marriage as yet. DIXIE

THERE no reason why you should not, inasmuch as your friendship is purely platonic. Unless you were a bit over sensitive in trying to make an impression on a lad in whom your best friend was interested. Don't throw away a fine girl friendship to prove you possess or attract your fancy. Be quite sure and not cast your self unnecessarily. You may lose a friend for no cause. Don't worry about the attention of someone she may feel you are "stealing from her."

RARE MELODY IN RUSSIAN MUSIC

Balieff's "Chauve-Souris" Brings Old World Vaudeville to Hub

An element of Balieff's Chauve Souris which is new to the American theatre is the use of the Russian folk song. Some of the most appealing numbers on the Russian program are those in which the Russian peasant finds an outlet for his emotions.

From the sweet, lilting Barcarolle of Glinka to the Russian interpretation of the gypsy, the music of the Chauve-Souris runs an extraordinary gamut. There are four songs of Russian home-life that I especially enjoyed, notably the Music Box number, done with the accompaniment of a real music box, the Barque of the Wagner Song, and the volumes of pathos in the Volga Boat Song, and the gaiety of the Italian Opera number.

Of course, the Chauve-Souris company is composed largely of singers, but there are also some very clever dancers. Mme. Boosi and Lazine, the soubrettes of the company, have a delightful quality of voice with the prettiest top notes characteristic of Slavic coloratura. Mme. Zola, the lyric soprano, is a graduate of the finest musical conservatory of Moscow and has sung both the operatic roles in Gounod's "Faust" and Lorenzo and her own arias in Moscow. Mme. Leskova, an extraordinary fine contralto was for six years a member of the same Opera Company as Fyodor Chaliapin. When the Russian Opera Company came to America last year Morris Gest was persuaded to loan Mme. Leskova to the Boston company to sing the leading contralto roles during the New York City engagement where she received highest praise for her rich quality and wonderful volume of tone.

Paulist Choristers In Return Concert

The Paulist Choristers led by Father William J. Finn will sing their only Boston concert of the year at Symphony Hall on Sunday evening, April 27th. Since the appearance of the choristers in Boston a year ago many new faces have been added to the choir making the total number of 50 voices. Included among the soloists will be members of the former choir, including Norman Murphy, bass, soloist of the St. Patrick's Cathedral, New York, Frederick Wheeler and James T. Duffey, whose voices are a range of alto, tenor and bass.

Besides the appearance of these well-known many of the same old songs will be seen. Among the best known will be Little Jackie Hoben of California, Brendon Ott, Edward Rafferty and Thomas Duffey.

One of the features of the choir this season will be the appearance of twelve boys at the organ.

With Chauve-Souris

ZOLA KARABANOVA

Zola is one of the beauties as well as talented members of Balieff's Chauve-Souris which comes to the Shubert Theatre on Monday, April 21.

Scenario Writer Started As Law Student

One of the new charming and talented women writers in the theatre is Elsie Stuyvesant, who's first work is The House Without Laughter from Edward Eggleston's famous American book, now playing at the Tremont.

Miss Stuyvesant was reading law with all good intentions of becoming a lawyer when she wrote and sold her first story. As she says that sport is much more interesting than studying law. She began writing stories of the Little Brown Jug Inn. The first line of continuity on this series that she wrote was also the first that King Vidor saw. After reading these stories Mr. Vidor decided that Miss Stuyvesant was the writer he was looking for to write the scenario for the picture version of The Jack Knife Man. Miss Stuyvesant has written a number of stories with a style of her own and is waiting to "find herself." Those will only do for the present.

Miss Stuyvesant's stories are clean and full of cheerfulness and the characters are natural, ending in a happy manner.

Mr. Rupert Hughes to D. W. Griffith:

Dear Mr. Griffith:

Your picture "AMERICA" has shaken me up and stirred me so deeply in so many ways that I must express my profound homage.

You have combined so many arts so greatly that your generalship is as amazing as your infinite success with detail of every sort.

There were so many thrills, heartbreaks and triumphs that it is ridiculous to praise any one thing.

But the whole sequence in which the son is brought to the bedside of the wounded father by that divine deceiver, the daughter, overwhelmed me as one of the greatest achievements by any of the arts from the Greek tragedy on.

The extraordinary tangled skein of Miss Dempster's acting, with every thread sincere and distinct and unlike anybody's else, also quite conquered me.

(Signed) RUPERT HUGHES.

SMALL FEES AT SOMERVILLE HOSPITAL

More Than 50 Per Cent. of Out-Patient Service Free, However

This is the forty-second of a series of articles which is a sequel to this newspaper's investigation of medical quackery in Greater Boston.

If you are not acquainted with reputable physicians and wish to make sure of obtaining expert advice and fair dealing the series will direct you how to avoid them by patronizing Boston's health centres, the best in the country.

For twenty-five years Somerville residents have been protected against the misrepresentations of quack doctors by the Somerville Hospital in Crocker street.

This hospital, although not a municipal institution, is paid by the city of Somerville to care for patients sent there. It receives no state or city aid, but depends upon ward fees and voluntary contributions for support.

Adults and children are received here for treatment of general medical and surgical diseases. The well-did out-patient department is also maintained, as well as a wing for maternity cases. It has no contagious department.

Out-patients are admitted daily, except Sundays and holidays, between the hours of 9 A. M. and 4 P. M. A fee of 25 cents a visit is charged. More than 50 per cent. of the service in this department is rendered free, however.

Private rooms are from $31.50 to $35 a week for medical and surgical cases, and from $35 to $42 for obstetrical cases. Ward rates are $21 a week excepting in the maternity department, where a fee of $28 is charged.

Should a patient be unable to pay the full sum, he is credited by the hospital for what service he does and is placed on the hospital free list for the remainder.

The hospital maintains a staff of nearly forty nurses to care for the 73 patients which the establishment is able to accommodate.

Miss Julia Leach is superintendent, and the medical staff includes Drs. M. D. White, Frederick G. Smith, George W. Whiting and Charles F. Maguire.

The President's Platform

Some Other Things

Copyright, 1924, Star Co.

President Coolidge is building his platform, Universal Service says, and is supposed to have decided that a dry plank isn't necessary, prohibition being settled here.

If he asked your advice, what plank would you suggest? And if you were absolute dictator, what new law would you add to the list, what old law would you repeal, what would you DO?

William J. Bryan wants government to pay the cost of political campaigns, thus preventing rich corporations and men from owning candidates whose expenses they pay.

A noble idea, but it wouldn't work. Rich corporations and men would add a few millions "on the side" to the government contribution and still own their men. They own them anyhow by selecting them BEFORE they are elected, and taking care of them AFTER they leave office.

The Labor party in England proposes to put through a bill that would prevent evicting the unemployed from their homes. It is predicted that Tories and the Liberals will unite to defeat the Labor government, if the bill goes through.

If that defeat comes, it is apt to send Labor back with a bigger vote. Not all countries are as conservative as ours.

The French don't mean to be left behind in the air, if they can help it. They know that world domination will depend upon AIR domination. Two hundred thousand francs are offered by the French government for a machine that will equal the speed of the American record, 140,000 francs to go to the airplane builder, and 60,000 francs to the maker of the motor.

When we get through with our oil scandal, our national election and a few other things, perhaps this country will show signs of realizing that safety depends upon the air fleet and the submarine fleet.

Don't Discourage Builders

Mellon's Good Advice

Copyright, 1924, Star Co.

Secretary Mellon tells the Senate Finance Committee that the talk about cutting 40 per cent., nearly one-half, from a man's property in the shape of an inheritance tax is "economic suicide."

As usual, Secretary Mellon is right. If you want to take a man's property, tax him while he is ALIVE. Collect a reasonable inheritance tax after he is dead if you need the money. But don't put a premium on extravagance by saying to the citizen, "You might as well burn up your money while you are living, because we will take it away from you when you are dead."

This country wants men to work, BUILD UP ENTERPRISES. If they create fortunes for themselves, nobody objects.

It might be a good idea to have a graduated inheritance tax, a small tax on money that a man has EARNED by work in HIS own lifetime, a much heavier tax on money NOT earned but merely inherited by the man that leaves it behind him.

The Laughing Jackass

New Gorilla, and Other Things

Copyright, 1924, Star Co.

Henry Bergheimer, a Swiss watchmaker, died, leaving a will by which he disinherited his son and daughter. He gave it all, $100,000, to Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, for whose jewelry firm he once worked.

The Laughing Jackass is an Australian bird which mimics the human voice and lives on fish and reptiles, while the Postgraduate Jackass is an American bird who disinherits those he brought into the world.

General Pershing is back from Europe, and he came on the American ship "George Washington." He said: "Every patriotic American citizen should travel on American ships. You never see a Frenchman or a Briton sailing on any liner save one flying his own flag."

The American Bar Association, which refused to go to Europe next Summer on the George Washington and chose a British ship instead, will now hold a meeting and accuse General Pershing of appealing to "The Mob."

As an incident of the religious intolerance now raging in our land several people have been killed in Pennsylvania. When so many things need fixing in this world, it would seem that gentlemen could find enough to occupy them, without fighting about the world to come.

Maeterlinck, the Belgian poet, has been challenged to a duel by a Sicilian, who thus seeks to wipe out certain literary attacks the Belgian made against Sicily. If Americans took such things seriously, they would be shooting at some foreign writer all the time.

It's easy to understand why Obregon holds his job; he has the stuff in him. While riding to his official residence in Mexico the one-armed President saw a rebel chief standing on the street corner, so he drew a pistol and captured him.

Instead of letting little gorillas into the United States to die, we should let good immigrants in to live and add to the wealth and power of the country.

Eliphalet Remington, who made the rifle and the typewriter, dies, impoverished, at ninety-five. He gave most of his money to Syracuse University.

But Mr. Remington didn't invent the typewriter. That was done by a Milwaukee newspaper man, Christopher Sholes, who sold his crude machine to Remington for $12,000. Mr. Densmore, who owned a share of the patent, took royalties instead of cash and it made him a millionaire.

The revelations of war plunder remind us that war brings out the heroes and the horse thieves. The heroes go over the top in charges against the enemy, while the horse thieves go over the top in charges against their own country.

LISTEN, WORLD! -:- By ELSIE ROBINSON

"DEAR ELSIE ROBINSON" (he writes): "I would like your opinion on something. However, I suppose, being a woman you will be as guarded in your reply as the rest of your sex. It is just about impossible to get an honest answer from a woman. However, here goes: WHY DO WOMEN ALWAYS TRY TO MANAGE MEN? Why are they always cooking up schemes to get their own way and never come out in the open and say what they want? As I had three sisters, I know what I am talking about. I used to listen to those girls talking the men they knew and you would think that men were so many trained monkeys and they were the trainers. The funny part is that they would work a month to get something they could have had in ten minutes by asking for it honestly. But no—they had to go snooping and scheming. You would think men couldn't understand plain English.

"My wife is a good woman and we have had no trouble in the nine years we have been married. I don't drink or gamble or chase. But yet I find her trying to manage me just as my sisters manage their husbands. Now why is that? Please don't give my name or address. She reads your column. A. D. K."

That's easy, Pal. Partly it is because for countless generations women have had to attend their ends by subtety rather than force. Men held the balance of power. Women couldn't grab, they could only graft. You're not apt to do much plain speaking when the other chap has a club in his hand and a dirty look in his eyes. That's one reason why women learn this cut-from-under method to which you object. But I think there's a still deeper reason. Listen:

If your business was making monkey wrenches, you'd think in terms of monkey wrenches, wouldn't you? Whenever you looked at a big building job, you'd think of the wrenches used in that job. You'd know the strength of the wrenches and their weakness. You'd know what steel ought to be used and how it should be manipulated. Not being a monkey wrench expert, I may not be expressing myself in technical terms, but you get me, don't you, Al? You'd acquire a monkey wrench complex, as it were.

Well, Al, the big feminine job isn't monkey wrenches—it's babies. That's a lot wider and deeper and more fundamental job than monkey wrenches. A man can acquire an interest in monkey wrenches. BUT EVERY WOMAN IS BORN WITH AN INTEREST IN BABIES. She begins the care and management of babies with the first doll she holds in her arms, and she never quits until they close her eyes and pull down the shades. She may never marry, may never have a baby of her own. But nature made her ready for the job and expresses it in one way or another. If she isn't bossing her own youngster, she's bossing the office force or the schoolroom or the world from the end of her fountain pen. Always she's going to look at the universe through the eyes of mother, and manipulate it accordingly, just as a man looks at a construction job and sees monkey wrenches.

"But," you ask, "what has this to do with women managing men?"

Landsakes, Child, don't you know that EVERY MAN IS A BABY TO EVERY WOMAN? His hide and his psychology may be all covered with red bristles, he may pack a wallop like a pile driver and be so hard boiled that he's a human hunk o' lava, nevertheless, some woman will feel that way down inside "he's as helpless and soft as a blond puppy. AND NINE CHANCES TO TEN, SHE'LL THINK RIGHT! That's why women "manage" men and scheme and connive when often plain-speaking would serve them better. Mothers don't speak plainly to children. They scheme and connive. They coax and manipulate. They do this long after the need for it has passed, because such mental processes have become fixed. And so they do with those greater children who call themselves "men." Is it the most intelligent way? No; but it's the most natural, and nature has a trick of romping right over intelligence.

Editor Helping Hand:

I have a baby carriage I would gladly give to some one in need, if they could send for it.

MRS. C. T.

Thank you. We have asked Mrs. L. R., who lives near you, to call for the carriage. Her nice fat baby is much too heavy for her to carry any longer.

Doubly Welcome

Editor Helping Hand:

I have sent two packages to the address you sent me but have picked up quite a few things beside. Am sending the list. If you would send the name or names of ones who would like the clothes and toys will send them. If you send address near or around Boston would take the things.

MRS. A. L.

Thank you. The list was too long to publish but doubly welcome for that reason. We have sent you the address of Alice and of Mrs. Y. J. B. both of whom live near Boston.

DR. FRANK CRANE ON THE OTHER SIDE OF MAIN STREET

By Dr. Frank Crane

THERE is quite a considerable school of writers that has sprung up in recent years. They flood the smart Aleck magazines. Their daily drool is found in the newspaper "colyum."

Their main characteristic is that they do not like the kind of people that American civilization has produced.

They hate the American business man. They regard his work as soul-killing, his ambition as absurd and his surroundings as deadly.

They look upon the thousands of American homes along Main Street as dull boxes inhabited by wretched uninaginative morons who are missing, altogether, the meaning of life.

If they write fiction they find their heroes among the tramps who sleep in the barn or rob the henroost and discover no trace of anything attractive in the poor boob who goes down to the office at 9 o'clock every morning and comes home tired to his wife and children at night, a home where he finds his diversion in helping the children with their geography, or discussing the Chautauqua books with his wife.

About all the color they can see in our civilization is furnished by the wastrel, the drunkard, the bootlegger, the prostitute or some sophomoric youth who is excited over the recent discovery of a truth that was a platitude in the days of Socrates.

Mr. Zangwill's play, "We Moderns," vividly depicts these exponents of piddling sophistication.

The moving picture, "The Covered Wagon," which thrilled most of us, was dismissed by these superior critics with the observation that "it was all right, if you like wagons."

Any effort to bring out the heroism and nobility of the early pioneers of this country is met with a sneer. One critic, the author of various books on French salons and Paris evenings, refers to the characters in Emerson Hough's Frontier Folk as weazened, weary, forlorn, gaunt and homely men and women who lived sordid lives.

Referring to these supercilious gentry, William MacLeod Raine writes:

"They do not care for the American tradition. The thing they have done is of no value, the empire we have built is wholly Philistine. We must look to Europe for any valid impulse. Let us have realism, stories of the neurotic emotions of youths who have no standards except self-made ones."

Meanwhile the great life of America flows on, a deep, clear and wholesome flood. It has few interpreters. Most of those who write of it know it about as well as the septic flies understand the banquet, or the boxcar hobo understands the railroad system.

Main Street cannot be understood, indeed nothing in the world can be understood, except by those who love it. For there can be no intelligent emotion or worthwhile criticism that does not spring from sympathy.

And Main Street is altogether the most significant work of civilization.

There is more happiness to the square inch in it than has existed in any other street built by man.

There is more health in it than in any other thoroughfare or any other place or time.

There is more conscience in it, more loyalty, more honesty and square dealing than ever could be found in the Champs Elysees or the Appian Way.

The Churches along Main Street are filled with sincerity of purpose and those who bow at their altars go out to make a better world.

The men who walk along Main Street are employed in making the world a decenter place to live in. The women who nurse their babies in the houses of Main Street are bringing up children who are helping to bring about the Golden Age.

There is Romance on Main Street. The boys and girls are making there a sounder, sweeter, more wholesome love than was ever snickered on Broadway, suggested in a Parisien cafe or whispered in the groves of Athens.

Main Street is the United States and no one who does not know its people and who does not have vision enough to see their sterling worth and intrinsic beauty can know what America means.

GARRETT P. SERVISS ON STAR INSPIRATIONS

By Garrett P. Serviss,

THE natural beginning of the year is not in the dead of Winter, but at the Vernal Equinox, when the earth awakes from all its living forms, and when the sun of the mind too comes up from below the equator and begins to suffuse the brain cells with its generative heat.

March winds and April showers make May flowers" in the intellectual as well as in the physical world.

The influence of the starry skies is never so stimulating as in the Spring months. The Sickle of Leo, the Lion, shining on the meridian in the early evening hours of April, is a symbol of the true new year. At the same time Orion, his bienal splendors appearing singularly veiled as he sinks into the horizon, comes forth with him the last spoils of the dead year. Over in the East, swiftly rising Spica, a diamond of the first water, glitters on the hand of Virgo, the maiden bearer of sheaves.

Overhead Ursa Major, the Great Bear, treads his circle round the fixed Pole, and behind him in the northeast glows Arcturus, which speaks of the coming heats of Summer, for immediately after sundown at the solstice the strident light of this great star seems to warm the zenith. If you wish to know how ruddy the star Arcturus is, glance from its fervent glow to the pure whiteness of Spica, and then back. It is marvellous that two immense suns should have such colors and show such a contrast, and each of them a thousand times greater than our sun.

Arcturus is one of the stars that I first learned to know by sight and name when a boy in the country, and its charm never has faded. Red is a color that usually makes a boy sit up and stare. I venture to quote the story of my first encounter with Arcturus, as told in my first book many years ago:

"Having read of it in an old book on uranography, I had an eager desire to see it. As my search chanced to begin at a season when Arcturus did not rise until after a boy's bed time, I for a long time was disappointed, and I never shall forget the start of surprise, and almost of awe, with which I finally caught sight of it one Spring evening, shooting its flaming rays through the branches of an apple orchard like a star on fire."

But there is a still redder star blazing in the Spring heavens—a star that literally resembles, at times, a flame of fire—the largest star, in angular diameter, yet measured by interferometer, Antares in the constellation Scorpio, the Scorpion. Antares rises late in April evenings, but in July it is on the meridian early, and it does not demand much stress of imagination to see the constellation Scorpion crawling along the southern horizon in the hot night, with double-tipped sting uplifted, and Antares gleaming wickedly in its heart.

I would say to those wh wish to learn the stars: Begin with the Spring. Month after month watch the westward sweep of the zodiacal constellations across the sky. You will have Leo on the meridian in the evenings of April, Virgo in those of May, Libra in June, Scorpio in July and in August the galactic magnificence of Sagittarius, the constellation that is like a star-pointed, palatial, gold-filled gateway, through whose openings are visible the gorgeous, far-distant clouds of suns that crowd and illuminate the Centre of the Universe!
